Total Only About Half of Casualties for 1931
MIDWEST HARD HIT Leads All Other Sections In Number of Deaths

(By the Associated Press)
America celebrated the 156th anniversary of the birth of the nation at a cost of more than 240 lives. But the toll was only about half of that of 1931 when nearly 500 persons paid with their lives for their celebration of the Fourth of July.

As in recent years, only a comparatively few of those who died this year were the victims of fireworks, which caused but 10 deaths in all. Automobile accidents were the chief cause, 119 being killed in motor mishaps.

Total drownings—81—for the nation fell off considerably from the previous year, when about 181 perished in the water, due in all probability to the fact that cool weather depopulated the beaches to a large extent.

The middle west led all other sections of the country in the number of deaths with more than 90, of which 55 were due to automobile accidents and 31 to drownings. About 50 persons, mostly children, were injured by fireworks in Chicago.

Of the 10 fatalities from fireworks, six occurred in Butte, Mont., where a pile of dynamite caps exploded. William and Joseph Crinch, aged 18, Rudolph Kayvan, 19; Stanley Strick, 18; Joseph Mufich, 18, and Stanley Serich, 18, were the victims.

The cool wave helped minimize the 1932 deaths in the three day celebration Saturday, Sunday and Monday, as no fatalities due to the weather were reported, whereas in 1931 twenty-four died from this cause alone.

Deaths totals mounted as reports came in from the midwest, hundreds were injured and Chicago suffered severely.

Nearly 60 persons were injured, some critically, by fireworks and firearms in the metropolitan area despite a ban on fireworks sales, the number was the greatest in recent years.

Only one auto fatality occurred, although city and county police estimated 500,000 persons were on the highways returning to Chicago last night from weekend resorts in Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan and the parks of Illinois.

There was only one death from drowning in the city proper.

DEATHS IN WISCONSIN (By the Associated Press)

Storms in Two States Kill 4, Injure Scores

Tornadoes Wreak Havoc in Nebraska and Kansas Regions

BUILDINGS CRASH Half of Business Section of Washington, Kas., Reported Wrecked

Washington, Kas.—(AP)—Scores of persons were homeless here today, victims of a Fourth of July tornado which struck in southeastern Nebraska and northern Kansas, killing at least four persons, injuring approximately fifty others, and wrecking more than 100 buildings.

The storm swept into Washington late yesterday, razing homes within a few blocks of the city park, where several thousand persons were assembled for an Independence day celebration.

Washington — (AP) — Tornado winds hedge-hopping across south-eastern Nebraska and northern Kansas have killed at least three persons, injured more than a score and brought great damage to the town of Washington.

The angry clouds struck here late yesterday after previously razing the farm home of Mrs. F. E. Slagle, about 30, of near Hubbell, Neb. Mrs. Slagle was killed and her husband and their two sons, Roy and Clyde, were injured.

Citizens of Washington and numerous visitors from nearby towns observed the sweep of the storm clouds near the close of an all day Fourth of July celebration. Gov. Harry M. Woodring, who was to be the principal speaker, cancelled the engagement because of fatigue after his return yesterday from the Democratic national convention at Chicago.

Crashing buildings killed Peter Gillette, a retired mail carrier and Granddaddy, about 50, of Nebraska. The city of approximately 1,300 persons immediately was thrown into complete chaos. Reports that two additional persons had been killed could not be verified early today.

Eight of the more seriously were taken to a Clay Center, Kas., hospital. Attached to the hospital said today that none was in critical condition.

These injured included Alma Green, 15, Fairbury, Neb.; Alva Simmitt, 19, Washington; Harry Frazer, Washington; Valtor Houska, 75, Washington; Mrs. Joseph Houska, 68, Washington; Ruth Fleming, 20, Washington; Mona May, 14, Linn, Kas., and Mrs. Roy Pitcher, 28, Washington.

Immediate attempts at rescue were started after the tornado struck, but such efforts were seriously hampered by a downpour of rain.

The rain halted later in the evening, but complete darkness added to the uncertainty of rescue operations. All electric light service was halted. The wind also wrenched aside the municipal water tower and the water supply was interrupted.

Two Take Off On Flight to Circle Globe

James Mattern and Bennett Griffin Hope to Make Journey in Six Days

LEAVE NEW YORK Satisfactory Weather Conditions Forecast for First Part of Flight

Harbor Grace, N. F.—(AP)—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, American aviators in search of a new round the world record, landed their plane at Harbor Grace late today after a hazardous trip from New York. They were lost for hours in a dense fog and overflew their base, the Harbor Grace airport, by 150 miles but made their way back.

New York—(AP)—James Mattern, one-time jazz drummer, and Bennett Griffin, who strated the enemy from the air in the World War, today for a round-the-world spin they hope will take them only six days.

Their red, white and blue plane, heavily loaded with gasoline, took off lumberingly from Floyd Bennett airport at 4:01 a. m. (eastern standard time) and headed for Harbor Grace, N. F., the end of the first leg of the flight.

Following approximately the route pursued by Harold Gatty and Wiley Post, who circled the globe in the "Winnie Mae," they hoped to knock the Wiley-Post record of 8 days, 15 hours, 51 minutes into a cocked hat.

Dr. James H. Kimball, veteran weather man who is unofficial starter of long-distance flights, told them that despite rain over Nova Scotia, they could expect satisfactory conditions.

Mattern, who hails from Fort Worth, Texas, and is 27 years old, sat 15 feet away from Griffin, 36-year-old Oklahoma City man. Between them were huge gasoline tanks.

The plane has dual controls, however, and the pilots planned to communicate with each other by means of notes placed in a small tube and slid along a cable. An abundance of compasses and a pair of ice indicators were among their instruments.

The pilots plotted a course across the Atlantic to Ireland, over Europe to Siberia, across the length of Asia to the Pacific and homeward by way of the north Pacific and Alaska.

Their 550-horsepower craft, No. 28892E, was formerly owned by Carl Cromwell of San Angelo, Texas, who was killed in an auto accident in Pennsylvania a year ago.

As they soared away from Floyd Bennett field this morning the five were going about 100 miles an hour. They carried 855 gallons of gasoline, planning to fill their tanks to capacity, 600 gallons, at Harbor Grace.

Conferees Agreed on Relief Measure; Veto Certain, Watson Says

President Urges Fund For Group on Aid For Jobless LAUDS WORK DONE Body Important in Coordinating Efforts. He Says

Washington—(AP)—President Hoover, in a brief message to congress today, asked for a special appropriation of $120,000 to continue the activities of the president's organization on unemployment relief.

The chief executive pointed out that congress had omitted an appropriation for the unemployment organization, headed by Walter S. Gifford, in the deficiency bill recently enacted.

Should the appropriation not be given, Mr. Hoover said, "there would be danger of national, state and local volunteer groups conducting that services such as they have rendered were no longer necessary."

The committee is composed of leading men and women in every state, whose effort has been to stimulate private aid and coordinate local activities.

Mr. Hoover said it was "obviously of the utmost importance" that there be no diminution in the voluntary efforts "which combine the intimate knowledge of local conditions with the sense of responsibility toward fellow citizens and neighbors in distress."

The full text of the president's special message follows: "The second deficiency bill just passed omitted an appropriation for continuance of the activities of the president's organization on unemployment relief. I urgently request that congress make a special appropriation of $120,000 to continue this work over the next fiscal year."

"This organization, of which Mr. Walter S. Gifford is director, is comprised of leading men and women throughout every state in the Union and has served to establish and coordinate state and local volunteer effort in relief distress throughout the nation."

"The organization has secured in a large way the cooperation of industry and labor, of national social welfare organizations, and has assisted in mobilizing a large amount of voluntary funds and administering local resources to the best advantage."

"This organization is the only agency for national coordination and stimulation for the multitude of voluntary efforts and a clearing to these thousands of organizations with suggestions and methods for the alleviation of unemployment distress."

"Should this organization be discontinued, not only would its important functions of stimulation of private giving and coordination be destroyed, but there would be grave danger of national, state and local volunteer groups concluding that services such as they have rendered were no longer necessary."

"Voluntary effort among our people is of far more importance both morally and financially than the direct aid of local or other governmental agencies. To demolish this organization would easily create a widespread confusion and a great hardship when the need in the greatest."

"It is obviously of the utmost importance that no action be taken which would destroy this organization, which has rendered such valuable service to the nation in the relief of unemployment distress."

"Continuance of this organization with the backing of every state in my opinion, most essential to the intelligent carrying out of the program of relief and unemployment relief."

The organized effort to carry out the program of relief and unemployment relief is of far more importance both morally and financially than the direct aid of local or other governmental agencies. To demolish this organization would easily create a widespread confusion and a great hardship when the need in the greatest."

No Agreement in Sight Over War Debts Question

Grandi Demands Complete Cancellation of Intra-European Debts

Lausanne, Switzerland—(AP)—An hour's conference between Prime Minister MacDonald and Chancellor von Papen of Germany brought the two no closer together today on a compromise settlement of war debts and reparations.

The chancellor shook his head as he left Mr. MacDonald's headquarters. "We're still far apart," he said. "We have made no progress."

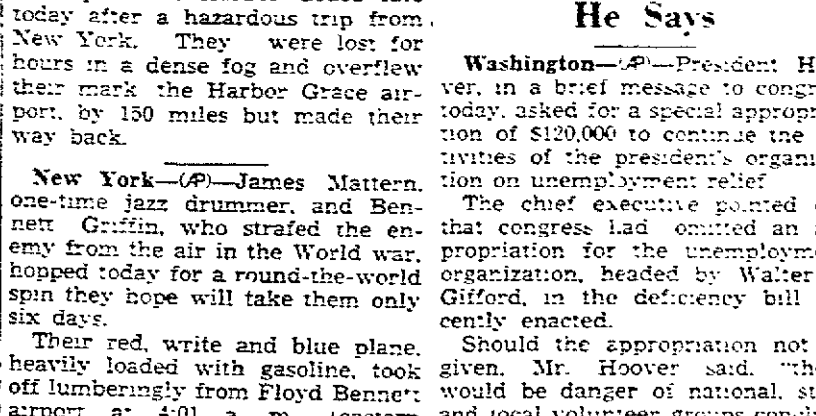

Dino Grandi, Premier Mussolini's black-bearded young foreign minister, rocked the conference to its foundations last night by demanding on behalf of Italy complete cancellation of intra-European war debts as a condition to cancellation of reparations.

Signor Grandi's notice to his fellow conferees was served in a statement he gave to the press yesterday. The conference, meanwhile, was waiting hopefully for the return of Premier Edouard Herriot from Paris to go ahead with the compromise plan proposed by the five major powers to Germany last week.

"What are nations which have debts to meet going to do without reparations receipts from Germany?" Signor Grandi asked. In Italian circles it was intimated Premier Mussolini would insist on a settlement of this question before the conference adjourns.

With six of the smaller nations showing marked discontent with the five-power for a German bond of approximately $1,000,000,000 in lieu of immediate reparations payments, it became apparent today until satisfaction was given on the questions she raised.

Germany was under heavy pressure, however, to accept the five-power plan, which contains a provision linking the reparations settlement with debts due the United States from the World War allies.

Bingham Ready To Push Action On Beer Measure

Connecticut Senator Says He Will Demand Immediate Vote

Washington—(AP)—The Republican house wet floor has been called to meet tomorrow to consider plans for action on a 32 per cent beer bill introduced today by Representative Britten of Illinois.

Washington—(AP)—Senator Bingham told newspapermen today he planned an immediate vote on his proposal to legalize 32 per cent beer.

The Connecticut Republican said he intended to call up during the day his amendment to the home loan bank bill to permit beer that he expected opponents to move immediately to send it to a committee in an effort to kill it.

Such a move will be fought vigorously by the beer advocates. Bingham said, on the ground that committees have studied the beer question sufficiently in the past few months.

Asked in the house whether it would be possible to consider immediately beer for revenue legislation, Speaker Garner replied: "No bill of that character has been reported to the house."

Representative Britten (R., Ill.), introduced the question, gaining recognition by saying, he had a "parliamentary inquiry."

"It is possible to take up the beer tax bill, for the reason that has been introduced by the Democratic platform," he asked.

"No bill of that character has been reported to the house," Garner replied.

"There is the O'Connor-Hull bill," Britten said. "I understand it can be taken up under a special rule of the speaker's table."

"That is a parliamentary inquiry," Garner replied as he raised his hand, and the parliamentarian has been here long enough to know it."

That ended the discussion.

SENATOR BORAH

Dry Party Wants Senator Borah to Be Its Candidate

Idaho Senator Not Expected to Accept Prohibition Party Nomination

Indianapolis—(AP)—Its hopes centered on a move to unite the great national temperance organizations in support of Senator Borah for the presidency, the Prohibition party gathered for its quadrennial national convention here today.

D. Leigh Colvin, national chairman of the party, has engaged in conferences with representatives of the temperance groups who are here, designed to gain advance pledges of support to the Idaho senator if he will accept the party's nomination.

Borah, who has refused to support the Republican presidential ticket because of the platform's declaration on prohibition, conferred with Colvin in Washington Sunday, but neither has revealed what, if anything, was decided. Those familiar with the senator's views believe he will decline the nomination.

Colvin, who returned here yesterday, said last night he believes Senator Borah would poll 10,000,000 votes as a candidate for president on the Prohibition ticket.

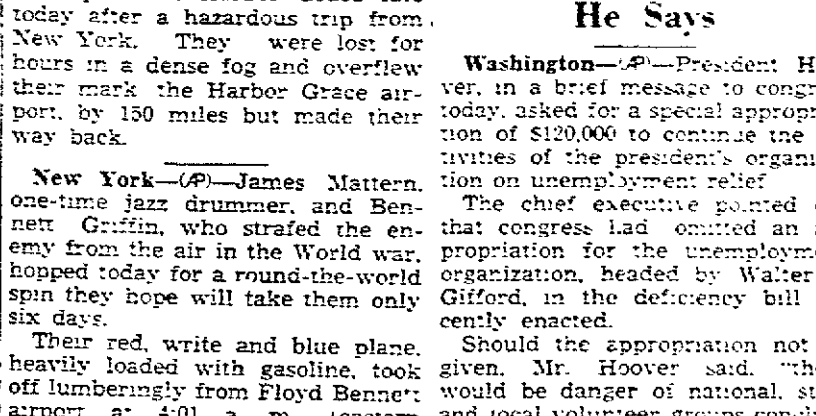

The movement to draft Borah drew some opposition from persons, described as a minority of the prohibition group, who feel the candidate should come from within the party ranks, as is customary.

Committees to draft a platform and attend to other convention business were formed at state caucuses preceding the opening session. The keynote address was entrusted to Clinton Howard of Rochester, N. Y., widely known temperance lecturer.

The major parties were scored at a mass meeting last night for their prohibition stands. Colvin said, "the Republican we plank means that Mr. Hoover who approved it and whose close associates and appointees drafted it and whose advisers promoted it in the convention is the most conspicuous turn-coat since Benedict Arnold."

Other speakers were Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the Women's Democratic Law Enforcement league; Mrs. F. L. Johnson of New York; and former Congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia.

A number of delegates to a two-day meeting of the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement, which ended here yesterday, announced plans to remain for the prohibition party convention, the women's group adopted a "platform" calling upon congress to support and defend the constitution against a noisy minority who, for appetite and greed, would break down the Union."

Senate Chiefs Try to Prevent Vote on Beer

Liquor Issue Continues to Dominate Discussions After Convention

Washington — (P) — Prohibition kept its place today at the top of the post-convention discussions. As senate leaders tried to avert another vote on the legalization of 3.2 per cent beer, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, got back to Washington from Chicago and warned that his organization is raising funds to support dry candidates for the house and senate.

Likewise, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., in an Ocean Grove, N. J., Independence day address, predicted that the Republicans would win in November, adding:

"I am an anti-Smith Democrat and anti-Chicago platform. The 1932 prohibition plank of the Republican party pledges enforcement of the law and opposes nullification. The Democrats in adopting an outright repeal plank have made the party of no support from the many organizations anxious to see the repeal of prohibition of the greatest social enactment made by any nation in any age."

Dr. Poling in this fashion summarized his reaction to the "rebuttal" plank of Republicans and repeal proposal of Democrats:

"We are raising funds and organizing to help elect a senate and a house of representatives pledged to enforce and not to nullify the law; pledged to preserve the gains made under the eighteenth amendment; pledged to the constitution of the United States and to representative government. We shall support Democratic and Republican alike who subscribe to these principles."

Legal Beer Plan This Same House and Senate Faced

This same house and senate faced a proposal by Senator Bingham (R., Conn.) to make 3.2 per cent beer legal. Bingham predicted it would pass the senate while Representative Britten (R., Ill.) made the same forecast for the house. Senate leaders hoped a vote could be prevented.

Other statements reflecting the increased interest in prohibition included:

Senator Davis of Pennsylvania, a strong administration Republican, announcing he would introduce a 3.2 per cent beer bill. "I think congress is overlooking an opportunity to raise millions by a simple method that would have the added advantage of employing many men and opening a market for grain."

Senator Norris, Nebraska, independent Republican, referring to these beer bills "it is not reasonable to expect that just when we are about to adjourn we shall pass something that we have fought over for years."

Senator Sheppard (D., Texas) who helped write the eighteenth amendment, promising that he would oppose either repeal or modification unless a referendum in his state directed him otherwise.

Senator Borah of Idaho, independent Republican dry, predicting in a telegram to the prohibition party's Indianapolis convention that "if the women of America will do their part" and "work for the right men in congress" there will be "no repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

Borah had talked with one of the prohibition party's leaders, D. Leigh Colver, about being their candidate for president. The Idahoan kept silent on that point although the prohibitionists were attempting to make the offer more attractive by wedding together support of the great national temperance organizations.

"Liberty Party" Picks Nominees

Selects 2 Californians as Candidates for President, Vice President

Kansas City — (P) — The new "Liberty party" has entered the national political field with the nomination of candidates for president and vice president.

Acceptance has been received from the presidential nominee, Frank Elbridge Webb of California. His running mate is Andrew N. Nordskog, also of California. Neither was at the convention. Webb was Farmer-Labor presidential candidate in 1928.

Convention leaders said the new party fused together six organizations—the old Liberty, Farmer-Labor, Progressive and Socialist parties and the Monetary league and the Farmers Union. Roland Bruner, Kansas City, chairman and national committeeman, has called a meeting of the national committee here Aug. 30.

Three other candidates placed in nomination was Jacob S. (General) Coxey, mayor of Massillon, Ohio, who in 1904 led a march of unemployed on the national capital. Coxey favors campaigning on only one issue, inflation of currency. Others whose names were placed before the convention for the presidential nomination were Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa Republican recently defeated for renomination by Henry Field, and Norman Thomas, New York Socialist.

Committee to Discuss Chairman Appointment

Appointment of a new chairman of the retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce will be discussed at a meeting of the special retail committee in the chamber offices at 9:30 Wednesday morning. Members of the committee are A. J. Genesee, H. A. Gloude-mans, Karl Hauger and William Helms.

HERE ARE LEADERS OF WAR DEBT CONFERENCE

Today and Tomorrow

Mr. Lippmann, formerly editor of the New York World, is one of the foremost liberal thinkers in the country. He has complete freedom of expression in the articles appearing under his signature.

BY WALTER LIPPMAN.

The Nomination of Roosevelt Chicago — The anti-Roosevelt coalition broke up at the appropriate point when California and Texas went over to the majority. The Garner candidacy never had any vitality and the Garner delegates had no good reason for separating themselves from the other Roosevelt states in the South and West. That Mr. McAdoo was able to make the announcement which prevented a deadlock must have seemed to him dramatically just for in 1925 he was himself the victim of the kind of deadlock which the opposition was trying to organize. It was also fitting that he should proclaim the victory of the Roosevelt forces: they were the same forces which supported him eight years ago and Bryan 36 years ago. These forces had a decisive majority at all times and they control the Democratic party in the nation. The minority could try to argue with them. It had no power to prevent them from imposing their will in the convention.

It is just as well that the decision was reached quickly. For just underneath the surface an appalling amount of bitterness had developed. The Roosevelt delegates were being persuaded that the opposition to Governor Roosevelt's nomination arose entirely from sectional or economic interests, and the Roosevelt managers encouraged this belief. As passions were aroused the coalition grew that there was no such thing as a disinterested and liberal objection to the governor on the ground of his qualifications. This conviction was reinforced by the brutal intolerance of the galleries and by the pressure exerted by men connected with public utilities and banks. Had the convention been deadlocked for a few more ballots there would have been an explosion of resentment which would have produced the utmost confusion and fury throughout the country. The temper of the opposition was also reaching a point where the fires of 1928 were again blazing and there was extreme danger that wounds would have been inflicted that could not soon have been healed.

Northwest Loses Another Step to Get Airmail Line

Senate Agrees to Recede From Amendment to Appropriation Bill

(Post-Crescent Wash. Bureau) Washington — Wisconsin and other northwestern states lost a step they thought they had gained toward securing a northwestern transcontinental airmail route when the Senate agreed to recede from its amendment to the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor appropriation bill "earmarking" about $200,000 of the airmail fund for such a route.

Opposing the recession, Sen. Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota said: "I regret, Mr. President, more than I can say that the Senate conferees have felt that the amendment receding from this earmarking feature, I regret it because it marks only one more failure of many which have grown out of the undertaking to win what we in the northern tier of states in the northwestern tier feel is only fair play."

"I have caused to be hung upon the back wall of the chamber a large map of the United States indicating all the present air mail routes in the country. I should like to call the attention of the senate to the transcontinental routes which now appear upon that map. There is the most southerly one. . . . Then there is the central route not much north of that, and a more northerly route running from San Francisco to Chicago, leaving the tier of states including Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin without anything resembling a transcontinental air route."

Parallel Rail Routes

He pointed out that the present three transcontinental air routes virtually parallel transcontinental rail mail routes, and added that although the northern tier of states, for which he was speaking, had four transcontinental railroads, they had not even one air mail route to augment the rail service.

Sen. Wesley Jones of Washington and Sen. Smoot of Utah both stated that they thought the matter could and would be worked out and a route established even without the earmarking provision.

Sen. Nye replied that in the "view of the general feeling the general assurance which is to be found that our needs in the northwestern are not going to be longer ignored and that in keeping with the times we are going to get our measures of fair play this year. I am going to refrain from doing what 'as evening' I was sure we in the northwest would have to do namely, ask the Senate to insist upon its amendment."

Sen. Norbeck of South Dakota, also opposing the recession, stated, however, "in view of the condition of the treasury and of other matter, I am perfectly willing to hold up this whole thing for another year."

Washington — Speaker John M. Garner's wife, who tends the office coffee pot, says she may move it and her knitting right over to the vice president's office—not if, but when, the Roosevelt-Garner ticket goes in.

Two Appleton Men At State Meeting

Madsen, Johnson Attend Veterinarians Conference at Fond du Lac

Dr. O. N. Johnson and Dr. W. H. Madsen left this morning for Fond du Lac to attend the annual convention of state veterinarians. Although the conference is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday the Appleton veterinarians will remain only for today's session.

Walter Wisnicky, director of livestock sanitation for the department of agriculture and markets, opened the convention this morning with discussion on the work of the department. At 1:30 this afternoon "Swine Disease Control" was discussed by J. H. Bollenbeck of Columbus, Ohio. "Disease Factors in Wild Life Administration" was the topic discussed by J. E. Shillinger. J. A. Healy of Madison will preside at the banquet at 6:30 this evening, followed by a talk on "Fishes and Places" by M. E. Diemer, director of the Diemer Photographic laboratory in Madison. Sessions will be resumed at 8:30 Wednesday morning.

Disregard of Laws Of God Blamed for World-Wide Slump

Country Must Get Down on Knees and Repent, Pastor Declares

America, depressed today because she disregarded the laws of the Almighty and chose high life, selfishness and vice, needs to get down on her knees and repent, the Rev. E. C. Reuter declared Sunday morning in his sermon, Our Independence, at First English Lutheran church.

"True prosperity, true happiness is centered in spiritual things and not material things," he said. "Babson is right when he says that the spiritual uplift of mankind will help America solve its problems. The church offers this spiritual uplift, but what is the attitude of America's people toward the church? Cold, indifferent. Not even 50 per cent are affiliated with the church, and many of those affiliated with the church are Christians by name only. In our national hymns we acknowledge the author of liberty, we acknowledge the gracious Lord of lords, and King of kings, but in our national life we deny and betray him. We glory in our independence of foreign domination, and may God speed the day when we can honestly and truthfully say that independent America confesses and glories in its dependence upon God."

Must Remember God

"America should not be independent of God. Such independence spells ruin and destruction. History proves that. The ideal government is one that senses higher values—liberty, truth, justice and decency. However, recent leaders are vital to civic welfare. No man is a good Christian who is not a good citizen. The duties of citizenship deserve the attention of all Jesus was not afraid of the subject of citizenship, neither was the apostle Paul. No man, no minister is too big, no pulpit too sacred for preaching a message that will make the nation God-minded and God-controlled."

Mr. Reuter spoke of two different spheres in which the church and state operate, and explained the right of citizens to separate themselves from the government.

"Government is of God, but does not exist for itself, but for man," he stated. "Man is not the tool of the state. When government does the things for which God instituted it, it functions properly. When the government enslaves, persecutes and endorses evil it should be opposed. Government is not a friend of a God who cannot be called to account. There is but one supreme authority and that is the Lord, to whom all rulers, officials should submit."

"The violation of principles is what led to the birth of America. When a nation like America becomes rich and powerful it is apt to refuse to others what its own people once demanded. When American deals with other governments, such as the Philippines, Porto Rico, Central America, it should remember its experience with the British. Our country should be interested in making the entire world a better place in which to live, but we should not force down other nation's throats what we ourselves refused to swallow."

2 Killed, Scores Injured in Reich

Toil of Political Rioting Continues to Grow in Germany

Berlin — (P) — Two deaths and scores in injuries were added last night to the toll of political clashes throughout Germany over the week end.

A Communist was shot by police in Berlin when the officer charged a group of battling Communists and National Socialists, and one Nazi was killed at Frankfurt in a clash with Communists.

There were several minor skirmishes in Berlin during the night, in which an undetermined number were injured. A second Nazi was wounded in the fray at Frankfurt.

Two were seriously injured, and many less seriously, in clashes between Nazis and Reichsbannermen at Leipzig. Clashes were also reported at Feuerbach and Forst.

Three deaths and scores of injured was the toll of Sunday's fighting throughout the Reich. The most serious fight developed at Essen, where one man was killed in a fight between Nazis and Communists and a clash between Communists and police ended in the death of one policeman.

The Communists shouted "kill the police dogs!" They also fired into a group of pedestrians who failed to respond to their snout of "Hail Moscow!" wounding two.

Seven were wounded in a Nazi-Reichsbanner fight at Neuruppin and many were hurt in a similar battle at Stuttgart. A Communist was slain in a clash with police at Eschwege.

Farmers Urged to War With Ballots For Relief Action

Chicago — (P) — American agriculture made its celebration of the 156th anniversary of the nation's birth a protest against its adversities.

A call to arms for a war of ballots in the farmers' cause was sounded in 10,000 communities where rural folk met at picnics of the American Farm Bureau federation yesterday.

In the cornland of Iowa rose the dominant note of this nation-wide communion of agrarians.

President E. A. O'Neal of the Farm Bureau, addressing thousands of farmers and many townspeople at Ottumwa, charged both major political parties with a "callousness and even defiant indifference to agriculture."

Both parties, he declared, have failed to relieve the farmer and his answer should be a war of ballots against "greedy financial and industrial interests" who have "forgotten that the farmers have been the chief factor in national development."

Farmers, he said, deplored failure of the major political conventions to discuss the great economic problems threatening the nation at greater length and in more specific terms.

His voice was echoed throughout the nation by other farm leaders pleading that commemoration of the nation's birth be made the occasion for fusion of farm interests that would bring a new economic freedom to farmland.

Green Bay Woman Awarded Damages

Chilton Man Must Pay $1,400, According to Jury's Finding

A jury in circuit court at Oshkosh last Saturday awarded damages of $1,400 to Mrs. Katherine Hoberg, Green Bay, in her suit against Dale Daniel, Chilton.

The action arose from an automobile accident on the lake shore road at the intersection with the Harrison street road a year ago. Three cars were involved and eight persons were injured.

Harold Hoberg, son of the plaintiff and driver of the Hoberg car, and his father, William Hoberg, as joint owners of the car, were interested defendants.

The jury found Daniel had been guilty of negligence regarding speed and in other particulars, and the court already had made a finding of negligence in that Daniel passed an arterial sign.

The defense attempted to show negligence on the part of Harold Hoberg, but the jury answers to the questions of the verdict found no negligence on his part.

The court's judgment calls for payment of $1,400 to Mrs. Hoberg for damage to her car, with interest.

The third car involved in the accident was driven by Ralph Schneider, Oshkosh. Also as an outcome of the accident, there was started a suit by Miss Mae Krueger, Kimberly, occupant of the Daniel car, against Mr. and Mrs. Hoberg and their son. That case also was on the calendar at the time of the trial of the action in which judgment was entered today, but objection to consolidation was sustained by the court.

Garner Plans Rest Before His Campaign

House Speaker to Return To Texas After Adjournment of Congress

BY CECIL E. DICKSON

Washington (AP)—Speaker John Nance Garner is going to take a rest in the salubrious sunshine of Texas before he enters the campaign for the vice presidency.

At present he does not plan any extensive tours but already Democrats throughout the country are urging him to make speeches in a number of big cities.

As soon as possible after congressional adjournment, Garner will go to Albany to confer with Gov. Franklin Roosevelt on plans for the campaign. Then he will return to Washington to wind up details at the speaker's office.

Somewhat wearied by the long hectic seven months of this session of congress, Garner is anxious to go home to Uvalde. He is always refreshed by a stay in the invigorating climate. Fishing trips in a much-battered flivver, too, give him rest and relaxation.

Garner does not want to make many speeches. He feels that through the radio, candidates can reach more people on real issues. On the other hand, he contends that even on an extensive tour, without the aid of the radio, a candidate can hardly get his word to more than 200,000 persons.

Speeches From Capital

Garner probably will make his headquarters in Washington during the latter part of the campaign, and will make at least one radio speech here.

As far as receiving the official notification of his nomination, Garner feels that his message to the convention accepting it was sufficient. He believes that the less hubbub about the campaign and the nomination the better.

Meanwhile, he will continue as a candidate for the next congress from the Fourteenth Texas district which he has served for 30 years. The primaries are on the last Saturday of this month. Garner's idea is to keep the 6,000 Republican voters in his district from electing a successor to him.

Not until congress has adjourned will he make any public statement on politics. He holds that he is too busy at his present job as speaker of the house.

Rain Mars but Fails to Stop July 4 Events

Sunday's Program Called Off—Record Crowd Present Monday

Old Jupiter Pluvius put a crimp in the American Legion's July 4 celebration at Erb park Sunday, but Appleton and Fox river valley folks made up for the lost time on Monday, legion members reported.

The crowds which thronged the park were larger than ever, and Monday evening they were rewarded by a double program of fireworks.

First indications that record crowds would invade the park came Saturday evening when an unusually large number attended the dance and saw the fireworks and the Aerial Christensen act. The many rides on the grounds also were well patronized, as were the stands and the games.

Sunday's program was washed out by the rain, which started falling in the morning and continued until the evening. The Monday crowds started to arrive early and grew in numbers until it was estimated they totaled more than any group ever jammed into the park.

Junior's Win Ball Game

In the afternoon a baseball game was played between legion junior teams from Appleton and Kimberly. Appleton won, 6 to 5. Events which had been carded for Sunday then were presented. Gladys Holtz won first place in the doll buggy race, and Nicholas Schilhabel had the best decorated bicycle.

Gordon Juse won the money hung at the top of the greased pole in a great struggle in master minding between the boys and the legion committee. The pole originally was waxed and the boys permitted to "practice." Within a few seconds they were climbing the pole in nothing flat and the legion board of strategy met hurriedly to consider a means of defense.

The youngsters were called off to another part of the park under some pretext, and a veteran armed with a ladder and grease bucket sneaked the pole a few inches from the top and then every few feet to the ground.

Success Brings Applause

When the practice session was resumed the boys found greater difficulty getting up the pole and finally dug up a rag with which to wipe off the surplus grease. After a bit of wiping and lot of sliding and slipping young Juse reached the top as the spectators applauded. Other sports events were running races and games. There was no pie eating contest. It was reported that the pies had been eaten before the youngsters had a chance.

The crowd kept the various rides and amusements jammed throughout Monday. Another feature of the day was a terrapin-turtle race. The turtles were shown here.

With thousands of people jamming the grounds and milling about there were numerous lost children and need for many emergency measures. The commissary tent on the grounds was the headquarters for almost everything. Twelve children were reported lost and found, and almost everything else was taken care of at the tent.

Y.M.C.A. Boys Go To Camp July 14

Leaders are Named by C. C. Bailey, Boys' Work Secretary

Tent leaders for the annual camp of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. at Onaway Island, Waupaca, have been named by C. C. Bailey, boys work secretary. They are Ed Goehner, Harold Euerdt, James Goehner, Arden Orman, John Frampton, Joe Verrier, Bob Merrifield and Frank Dean. Paul Tetrup has been named camp bugler.

A group of 49 youngsters has signed up for camp, which begins on July 14. Each of the tent leaders has been picked because of some special work he can handle.

Several will be trained and direct the swim programs, others will play evening programs, others will lead the boys in various sports and games and studies. A meeting of the leaders was held last week to make plans for the encampment.

German Paper Ordered Suspended for 3 Days

Leipzig, Germany.—A supreme court today ordered the suspension for three days of the Cologne Volkszeitung. The government charged the newspaper with endangering the country's foreign policy.

An editorial to which the government objected criticized Chancellor von Papen's course at Lausanne and asserted even some of the right circles considered him a "catastrophe."

Recently the supreme court suspended two other opposition papers after the Prussian government had refused to accede to the demand of the federal minister of the interior that the papers be penalized for offensive articles.

Sleeper, Oosterhous to Give Convention Reports

Reports on the annual convention of Kwanis International held last week in Detroit, Mich., will be submitted by A. G. Oosterhous and Louis C. Sleeper at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club at luncheon hotel at 12:15 Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Oosterhous and Mr. Sleeper were official delegates to the convention. A dinner and business session will precede the reports.

Northern Pike Are Found In Many Wisconsin Lakes

BY BERT CLAFLIN

As intimated in our last article of this series we will now point out some of the best waters for northern pike fishing in Wisconsin.

We cannot attempt to be conclusive in our list because of the great number of lakes and streams that contain this fish, hence it must be understood that perhaps as many as we shall name are equally as prolific even though we do not speak of them.

In the southern part of the state are Pewaukee, Lac La Belle, Mendota and Rock River. A bit farther north is Pukaway, then Green, Poygan and Winnebago. Good specimens are taken from these waters every season. Some of the lakes of the Waupaca Chain of Lakes contain them. The Peshtigo River, in Marinette-co is one of the very best streams in numbers caught each year.

Big Lake and Planting Ground in the Three Lakes chain are noted for their big northern pike. So too is Catfish and Cranberry of the Eagle Chain. Boom, Moon, Crescent, Horseshoe, Stone, Metonga, Butter-nut, in the Candon region are good. Tomahawk, Lost, Plum, Star, Ballard yield big ones. Fence, Gung, Shishobogama, Boot and Long are also well worth a visit from anglers who like to cast for pike.

Up highway 32 are a number of waters that are noted for their big ones. Anderson, the pond at Lakeview, some smaller lakes between Mountain and highway 35 contain them, and other small lakes little known.

Mrs. Barney is Called to Stand In Murder Trial

Testifies She Supported Shooting Victim for Nearly Two Years

London.—(AP)—Testifying in her trial for the murder of Thomas William Scott Stephen, Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney told today how she had supported the young man-about-town for nearly two years.

Stephen, son of a prominent British financier, was killed in her Mayfair apartment after a party on May 31. The defense is that the fatal shot was fired as Stephen tried to disarm Mrs. Barney who had threatened to commit suicide.

Because of the prominence of both, the trial has attracted hundreds, but today only a few spectators were admitted to the courtroom. Most of them were well-known in society and the arts.

Mrs. Barney, apparently in complete control of her emotions, was led through a story of the past few years by her attorney, Sir Patrick Hastings, one of England's most brilliant trial lawyers.

Four years ago, she said, she married John Barney, an American singer who appeared in England as "The Three New Yorkers." He was cruel to her and they separated in 1930. She has not seen him since, she testified, but there was a rumour that he would appear during the proceedings.

Divorce Difficult

She could not get a divorce because she had acquired American citizenship because of her marriage and the technicalities made it difficult, she said. She had an income of her own and lived alone until young Stephen came into her life.

So far as she could learn he had no means of support and although he got a little money from his mother once in a while, Mrs. Barney supported him almost entirely. But sometimes he too was unkind, and on one occasion he frightened her so that she called a policeman to their apartment, she said.

He lost considerable money through gambling and one of his gambling companions was a woman, to whom Mrs. Barney said she objected. She told of quarrels with Stephen about the woman.

Pike Plentiful

In the central part of the state we have Butternut, Rib, Spirit Lakes and the Wisconsin River at Wisconsin Rapids and Lake Waubesa.

In the western portion of the state are Cable, Namekagon, Round, Upper Twin, Chetek, Webb, Eau Claire, Black, Edgewater, Shell, Lone Cedar, Pokegama, Sand and Wisconsin, the latter near Chippewa Falls. Also, the west fork of the Chippewa river has plenty of big ones.

The Flambeau from Park Falls down through Fifield and for miles below Phillips is good water for big pike. Reports come in every week of good catches being made.

Undoubtedly, most anglers use plugs and spoons in fishing for northern pike. They are good, of course, yet as many fish of this species can be taken on a slim piece of home-sliced pork rind if augmented by a strip of red cloth, preferably flannel. Also, a big meadow frog of the common green variety always appeals to the cannibals, and a live mouse is particularly effective. In fact, they will, if hungry, which is most always, strike at about anything having motion and bright colors.

Britain Clamps Heavy Tariff on Free State Goods

Retaliates Against Erin's Refusal to Pay Further Land Annuities

London.—(AP)—Great Britain today made good its threat to retaliate against the refusal of the Irish Free State to make further land annuity payments.

A 100 per cent tariff on Free State goods was authorized last night by the house of commons by an overwhelming vote. The vote was upon a resolution introduced by J. H. Thomas, secretary for the dominions, who recently conferred with President de Valera in Dublin.

Mr. Thomas said he received a note from the Free State government insisting that the annuities question be arbitrated by an international tribunal but that Great Britain could not consent to permit foreigners to arbitrate domestic disputes. It would be necessary, he said, to proceed to collect the annuities with a tariff.

Both governments have agreed to arbitration, but Britain has contended for a tribunal formed from the units of the empire, while the Free State has insisted it is a question for an international tribunal to decide.

The land annuities, amounting to approximately $11,000,000 a year, were set up by the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 and were intended to reimburse landholders, mostly British, for land purchased for parceling to tenant farmers.

Three Persons Badly Burned By Fireworks

Auto Accident, Falls Result In Injury to Three Others

The spitting fire of small bombs and firecrackers burned three persons severely during the weekend, and resulted in a number of minor burns to fingers and hands; two persons were injured in falls, and one was hurt in an automobile accident.

Frank Snow, 28, Beloit, is in St. Elizabeth hospital with wounds in the calf of his left leg, which resulted when a bomb, which he was lighting at Erb park about 9:30 last night, exploded prematurely. Snow, an employee of the Lake Side Fire works company of Beloit, was assisting in setting off the fireworks display in connection with the American Legion picnic at Erb park. He was taken to the hospital in the police car by Officer Carl Radtke.

Norbert Blohm, 422 W. Winnebago-st, houseman at the Conway hotel, was burned on the leg and ankle about the head when some small bombs exploded in the car in which he was riding, at the corner of W. Atlantic and N. Richmond-sts, about 8 o'clock Saturday evening. One of the bombs, thrown out of the car, fell back into the roadster and ignited the rest of the fireworks supply. Blohm, who was seated between John Karweick, 1414 N. Clark-st, and Clifford Hatch, 617 N. Clark-st, was the only occupant burned. He was given medical attention at a doctor's office. The top of the car was damaged by fire.

The girl was walking along the street with several companions when she fell. She was taken to a doctor's office for treatment and then removed to her home.

Miss Lucille Bock, 22, Black Creek, suffered lacerations of the forehead when the car in which she was riding and another machine collided at the corner of Lawrence and S. Oneida-sts about 1:35 Sunday morning. Miss Bock was riding in a car driven by Harvey Kraus, hold, 1444 W. Prospect-ave, which was going north on S. New System in Use By Bank at Marion

Waiver of 95 Per Cent of Deposits Secured by Directors

The First National Bank of Marion called a meeting Saturday afternoon to ask an immediate waiver of all deposits on hand to which business men and farmers responded by obtaining 95 per cent of all depositors' signatures Sunday and Monday. The bank opened at 9 o'clock this morning as usual under a new system.

The business men and farmers in the immediate vicinity of Marion organized 30 teams to obtain depositors' signatures Sunday and Monday. Saturday night the details of the new policy were explained at a community meeting of citizens and depositors.

It was agreed that 35 per cent of all deposits be placed in a trust fund under the directorship of three trustees, Anton Mueleg, William Wulke, Wilbur Daug and the present cashier, J. E. Arndt.

The remaining 65 per cent will be released under the following schedule: 10 per cent every six months for two years and 15 per cent every six months for the succeeding two years.

Under the new ruling all interest, checking accounts, savings and certificates of deposit will be classified as a savings account bearing 2 per cent interest. All old accounts were transferred to the new savings account and the bank opened under the new system of operation this morning.

Charles L. Bowers, vice president, is the present acting president. The former president, P. A. Michaelis, died recently.

Editors Agree Real War Due On Prohibition

But They Differ Widely on Effects of Planks by Two Major Parties

The Associated Press has compiled from every state a symposium of editorial opinion of newspapers of all political faiths, relating to the prohibition planks adopted by the Republican and Democratic conventions. This survey, the first of its kind ever undertaken immediately after the event, is presented below.)

BY BYRON PRICE
Chicago (AP)—The prohibition debates which swept both of the great party conventions in Chicago are continuing now in almost every community, with a ferocity lifting the question of the future of the dry laws to a new eminence in national politics.

Editorials gathered by the Associated Press from hundreds of large and small newspapers disclose that among all the issues raised in the party platforms, prohibition—or, rather, what shall be done about prohibition—is the absorbing topic of local comment and agitation in every state.

Many of the newspapers speak of the Democratic plank favoring repeal and the Republican plank favoring submission as presenting the one paramount question to be decided in November, overshadowing even the presidential outcome. Those who disagree with this view take three directions: A few contend there is no difference in effect between the two planks. Others hold that no real referendum is possible in the present campaign, because the prohibition issue is intertwined with grave economic problems. Still others point out that regardless of the outcome, it is congress and not the president or party conventions which must act if there is to be actual revision.

No evidence of an actual shift in the party alignments of partisan newspapers is presented, although in some sections of the south the editors warn the Democrats of wet-dry schisms, and some of the Republican independent journals in anti-prohibition territory condemn Republican "pussyfooting" and flirt with the Democratic repeal plank.

Different Viewpoints
One considerable group of presumably wet advocates analyze both party planks to assert that national prohibition is doomed. They are answered by militant dries who insist the Chicago conventions both were swept by wet hysteria and that second thoughts will be best.

Many and varied are the descriptions attached to the two planks by editorial writers as they attempt to assess the results at the polls in November.

The big city dailies of New York, Chicago and kindred industrial centers unite in a shout of rejoicing that both conventions went further toward the wet side than expected before hand. This view is far from unanimous, however, even among the nation's largest and most influential papers.

"The American people must decide whether they want to stop prohibition entirely, and leave the way open to the saloon and old conditions," says the Kansas City (Mo.) Star, "or whether they will hold the benefits that have been gained under prohibition and discard its abuses under a moderate change of the existing system."

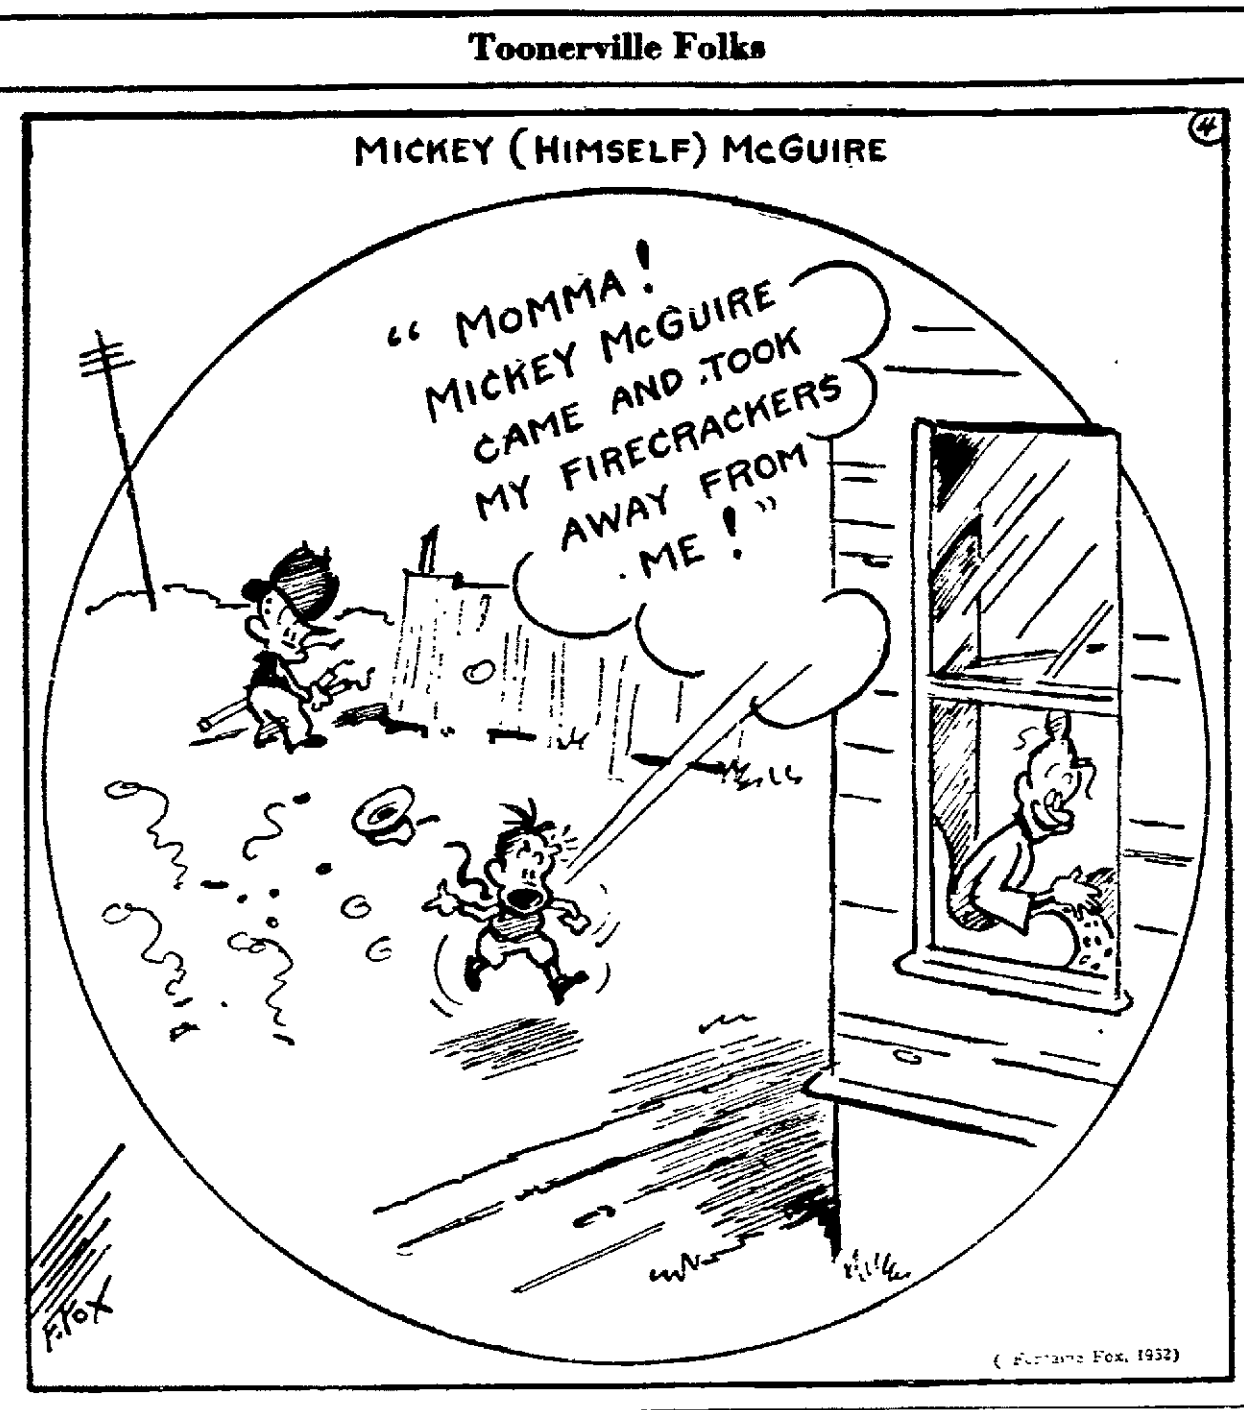

The San Francisco (Calif.) Chronicle declares the chief party difference is "that the Republican platform seeks to keep the prohibition question out of party politics, whereas it does not belong, and in which it cannot be settled while the Democratic party seeks to drag it into the presidential election." The Los Angeles (Calif.) Times Remarks:

"Unsatisfactory to prohibitionists as was the Republican platform, the Democratic plank leaves them nowhere to go except into the Republican ranks and this they will do by wholesale in many states."

Other Comment
Among the smaller journals, the Mitchell (S. D.) Evening Republican argues that "the Republican proposal is much more likely to secure repeal than that of the Democrats," while the Wausau (Wis.) Record-Herald agrees that "the direct repeal plank of the Democratic platform is calculated to delay rather than hasten repeal of the 18th amendment," and the Helena (Mont.) Independent, disagreeing with both, says:

"They cannot be compared. The one is a definite pledge—the other is meaningless."

Certain it is that editors scattered over a very wide territory are convinced a real inter-party issue has been presented to the electorate. Says the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette: "The election is going to turn very largely on the question of prohibition." And the Salt Lake (Utah) Telegram: "Upon this Democratic plank expression toward prohibition the outcome of the presidential election will probably hinge." And the Cherokee (Ga.) Daily Times: "The wet or dry issue is apt to be the overshadowing issue." The Danville (Va.) Bee sees in the issue the vehicle through which victory or defeat of the party will be brought about."

"The issue is joined," says the Aurora, (Ill.) Beacon-News "The wet and dry issue is laid down," agrees the Janesville (Wis.) Gazette. "Now that the people know precisely where the one party stands on federal prohibition, they can vote straight and settle the issue," concludes the St. Louis (Mo.) Post-Dispatch.

This note of clarity as to just what the controversy is all about is not, however, unanimous. The Wilkesbarre (Pa.) Record voices the sentiment of a considerable number of publications, widely scattered, when it says that the two planks "provide for exactly the same process of determining whether liquor shall or shall not be brought back, that is, by giving the people, in state conventions, the right to decide."

Up To People
"Both parties stand equally for liberalization of the 18th amendment," says the Lewiston (Me.) Evening Journal, and down in Texas the Houston Chronicle puts it this way:

"Under the platform adopted by either the Republicans or the Democrats, the ultimate power to reject or ratify rests with the people themselves, in precisely the same way, whichever plank you academically prefer."

There is a notable editorial hesitancy about forecasting the results at the polls in November. Many dailies, like the Washington (D.C.) Evening Star, content themselves with merely reviewing the provisions of the two planks, determining the Democratic offering as "wet," and the Republican as not quite so "wet," and leaving the reader to work it out for himself. The traditionally-dry Rochester (N. Y.) Times Union, concludes its editorial thus:

"The net result is to emphasize the wet position of the Democratic party as opposed to the course approved by the Republican convention."

Others are bolder. The Oil City (Pa.) Derrick states it as the general opinion that the Democratic pronouncement "will be the greatest asset of the Democratic party in the coming campaign," but adds that the Democrats should present a workable plan. The Salt Lake City (Utah) Desert News predicts that "between now and November the generation that voted for prohibition will wake up to the danger, and the battle will not be so easy as the Democratic leaders believe."

By the Waukegan (Ill.) News-Sun, impressed with southern rumblings of dissent, this conclusion is presented:

"It would not surprise many of the Republicans won in the south and the Democrats in the north."

The southern Democratic editors themselves are in very wide disagreement as to the effect of the

Toonerville Folks

MICKEY (HIMSELF) MCGUIRE

Democratic repeal demand in that area. For example:

Battle in South
The Laurel (Miss.) Leader-Call: "The Repeal plank will afford a good fight in many a southern state."

The Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal: "The Democrats deserve victory on their platform alone. The only certainty in the Republican liquor plank is the overlordship of the federal government in the control of a police regulation. The menace involved will make many southerners, regardless of their belief about prohibition, think hard."

The Shreveport (La.) Times says the repeal plank "gives the nation what it wants," while the Marshall (Tex.) Messenger declares the convention "voted to split the party wide open," and the Charlottesville (Va.) Dairy Progress took a middle course by predicting that Bishop Cannon probably would join the Republicans again, "but apparently with a vastly less brave display than four years ago."

While some papers, including the Republican Colorado Springs (Colo.) Gazette, declare "the Democrats did what the Republican convention wanted to do," many among the most staunch prohibition advocates assert that both national conventions were unduly influenced by wet galleries and the excitement of the moment.

Sees More Sober Days
The Hoquiam (Wash.) Daily Washingtonian declares the repeal plank was adopted "in a wave of hysteria," and predicts that "more sober days will come." Similarly, the Stockton (Calif.) Independent refers to the Democratic convention as having been "swept off its feet by wet oratory," and the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle complains that dry sentiment among the delegates "was given no opportunity to express itself."

A few, like the Denver (Colo.) Post, hint at a well organized wet lobby.

"The Democrats need money and lots of it to finance their 1932 campaign," says the Post, "and the only source of revenue they can find is the booze interests which are willing to spend millions in a fight to repeal prohibition."

The Cincinnati (O.) Times-Star is not worried whether the conventions were stampeded. It says: "The country was stampeded into prohibition; it is fair enough that it should be stampeded out."

The attention given prohibition by both conventions, at the expense of pressing economic problems arouses wide indignation, particularly among the dry editors.

"Both platforms are wrong in giving so much weight to liquor," says the Detroit (Mich.) News. The much smaller Washington (Ind.) Herald agrees: "The prohibition question should be disposed of, but it is nothing short of colossal crime that it is being allowed to push all other considerations into the background."

In the same vein, the Yuma (Ariz.) Sentinel observes that "it will be fine for the politicians if they can slip the voters a little beer and make them forget their troubles," and the Anaheim (Calif.) Bulletin bemoans the turn of affairs as follows:

"Impossibly Un-American"
"It seems unreal, impossibly un-American and almost ludicrous that the people of this country should in these times of stress be seeking with such fanatical determination to restore alcohol to its throne. What a country! What a situation!"
The friends of national prohibition on the one side, and its enemies on the other, try to outdo one another with the sharpness of their words of commendation and condemnation.

"The Democratic repeal plank is a sign of the return of common sense," says the Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator. "The first definite and decisive step toward national prosperity" is the way — the Seattle (Wash.) Daily Times speaks of the repeal, indorsement. Says the Philadelphia (Pa.) Record: "No citizen could ask more." The Baltimore (Md.) Evening Sun applauds: "Down with spies, up with beer. In essence, that is the prohibition plank the Democratic party adopted. All honest men will rejoice."
And on the other side of the question: "In adopting the repeal plank, the Democratic convention took an extremely unwise step," says the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News. "The situation is the result of a huge expenditure of money on the part of men who expect to reap a rich harvest from the traffic if it is restored and over-confidence on the part of the dries," joins in the Ada (Okla.) Evening News.

Return of Saloon
Many of those who protest against the Democratic repeal plank believe, with the Albuquerque (N. M.) Morning Journal that the proposal contains no real safeguards and that "the saloon would return."

"Repeal of prohibition means a return of the saloon," insists the Wheeling (W. Va.) News. "The Democratic plank does not in fact provide against return of the saloon and the evils of an unregulated liquor traffic," agrees the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard. The New York (N. Y.) Daily News, on the other hand, complains because the Democrats advised against return of the saloon at all, asking why any state wants the old days back should not be permitted to have them.

A point overlooked by many editors is made by the Cumberland (Md.) Daily News when it says: "The national conventions do not write constitutional amendments. These are prepared by congress. The issue is so indubitably injected into the campaign this year that no candidate in either branch can afford to pussyfoot on it."

On the same theme, Victor Mordock's Wichita (Kas.) Eagle asks "everybody interested again to remember that the issue itself cannot be launched before the nation except by congress."

Whatever the merits of the whole discussion, and whatever the outcome, the editors agreed by the hundreds that a real prohibition war impends, and that it will not be over soon. The editorial estimates of the time it will take to arrive at any decision on constitutional prohibition range from two to ten years.

Meanwhile, it is unanimous, too, that prohibition is now an integral part of the partisan political set-up of the country, a circumstance which the Peoria (Ill.) Journal sees fit to describe thus:

"The nation has suffered from prohibition as a moral issue. It now bids fair to suffer from prohibition as a political issue."

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE

Franklin D. Roosevelt would not have been nominated on the fourth ballot, and perhaps not at all, did he not bear a name made forever distinguished in American history by a former president of the United States.

But while Mr. Roosevelt's public career has been greatly assisted by his name, and we all recognize that he belongs to an illustrious family, families will become princely or royal only when the recognition of their names is given a weight out of proportion to the individual and actual accomplishments of the members.

Governor Roosevelt at least did not start at the top. Twenty-two years ago he was elected to the state senate of New York. His record there was clean, intelligent, honorable.

Under President Wilson he served as assistant secretary of the navy. He thus occupied a position of considerable influence in party councils. All during this time he associated himself with men and policies of good repute and high purpose.

Twice has he been elected governor of New York, the second time by an immensely augmented majority. The people of his own state have trusted him widely and, upon more intimate acquaintance, have made that trust more manifest. As governor he has been a pronounced liberal but one whose head, and not whose heart, directed policies.

Up to about 80 days ago it would have been difficult to find in this man's record anything of a substantial nature for pungent criticism. Then Governor Roosevelt sought to walk a political tight-rope. He accepted important invitations to deliver public addresses at a critical time and on critical subjects and apparently determined to avoid any gamble with his chances of nomination by making a beautiful straddle of everything. He dealt not only in glittering but in dazzling, blinding generalities. His conduct upon these occasions was so much that of a ward politician as to seriously shake the confidence of the country in his courage to meet hard problems and his ability to solve them.

So far as platforms are concerned the Democratic party should win.

All the music of bands, words of orators, or language of writers cannot alter the fact that the disposition of the Eighteenth Amendment is the greatest single issue before the people, so far outstripping and dwarfing others as to leave little room for intelligent men to dispute the proposition. It is an issue that not only touches the home, the morals, and therefore the future of the race, but has so thoroughly thrown our entire economic machinery out of gear that it must bear a substantial amount of blame, if not in bringing on the depression, certainly in accentuating and prolonging it.

Because of its clear and straight plank on this issue the Democratic party has a start in the race. But it hasn't it won by any means. Pronounced liberals of the Walter Lippmann type will not admit that the country is going conservative but declare that voters are becoming "cautious." Is there any difference except in the use of words? Certainly the country will not tolerate an uncertain program any more than it will a wild one.

If Governor Roosevelt continues his course of the last 30 days or embarks on a program of what he may choose to call "bold experimentation," he is probably defeated. The worst result of his defeat might be a conclusion that the country admires and supports the sad and indefensible plank of the Republican party on the matter of prohibition.

Democrats better breathe a quiet prayer that Governor Roosevelt will so conduct himself and his campaign as to justify a full measure of confidence in him as the nation's chief executive.

His election seems at this day to be practically in his own hands. President Hoover can not defeat him but he may defeat himself.

DEPRESSION STORY

Queerest of all the tales of the depression is this one, from Michigan:

In 1929, before the crash, a man had a $280,000 loan at a bank, to cover which he deposited stock, worth, at the market then existing, $400,000. When the stock market went into a tailspin the bank sold him out, getting $330,000 for the stock, and leaving the man with his debt paid and a $50,000 credit in the bank.

Then, a little later, the bank collapsed. In a short time it was reorganized, and in the shrinkage that was involved the man's credit dwindled to $36,000. Thereupon he drew out $30,000—and bought back all of the securities he had held originally. So now he holds the same stock that he held in 1929, he has wiped out a $280,000 loan and he has $6,000 in cash. Has he gained or lost in the depression?

TELEPHONE RATES

Aside from the relief with which a sorely beset people will naturally hail every reduction in the items of cost incident to the establishments they maintain, and particularly with relation to public utility charges, the substantial cut ordered by the Wisconsin Public Service Commission in telephone rates will be welcomed as a seeming matter of justice.

We all appreciate the hopelessness of becoming intimately familiar with the countless factors that have their effect upon rate schedules. If there is one subject over which the public is quite incapable of justly weighing most of the conflicting claims submitted through the press, it is in these matters of involved arithmetic, extensive and varying depreciation allowances, obsolescence items, division or distribution of cost between intra and interstate commerce, etc.

We must and do trust the Public Service Commission. It is a judicial body given authority to fix rates. Its orders must be made however upon careful examination and cautious scrutiny of all claims. It cannot thrust out in the dark nor act without affording interested parties the right to a full hearing.

When, as now, it is loaded beyond capacity with the stupendous work of correcting public utility rates due to the change of economic conditions on every hand, it has authority to declare that an emergency exists, that it cannot stop for the ascertainment of exact justice but will make an order, if anything slightly favorable to the utility, but giving the people probably 90 per cent of the corrections to which they are entitled at this time, with the promise to return to the subject as soon as it possibly can.

Without hazarding an opinion upon the principal issues wherein sharp differences of opinion arose between the state and the utility, the order has the appearance, certainly of good faith, and sounds like a just, as it is assuredly a practical, although necessarily, a temporary solution of the matter.

NEPTUNE SURRENDERS A TREASURE

Had one listened intently the other day to the soft eastern breezes there might have been heard a cry that has lighted the fires of human passion and greed ever since commerce set the mark of selfishness upon the yellow metal.

It was the cry of "Gold, gold, the Egypt's gold at last," as the first gold bullion and coin was raised from that sunken liner off the coast of France.

Those deep-sea Italian divers who have labored so long and with such amazing persistence are now reaping their reward. After four years of effort, gold and silver bullion and British sovereigns valued at millions of dollars have been uncovered and are now piled in heaps upon the salvage ship Artiglio's deck with every heave of the grab.

The Egypt was sunk during a fog on the night of May 21, 1922, as she was steaming south, twenty-two miles off shore in the Bay of Biscay. She was rammed by the freighter Seine and sank with the loss of ninety-two lives and $5,000,000 in silver and gold.

It required search for over a year by the Italian divers before the sunken vessel was found and identified. Lying in 400 feet of water on a trade route noted for high rolling waves, heavy fogs and violent storms, the work of salvage has been extremely hazardous. The success of the operation required the wrecking of the ship's superstructure over the bullion room and the tearing away of this mass of steel in order to reach the goal—all performed under the direction of divers working at a depth never before attempted. It is said that no piece of underwater work so difficult, so strange and so full of involved problems has ever before been accomplished.

New methods in deep-sea diving as developed by the Artiglio's crew promise interesting possibilities for undersea exploration. Many ships and countless millions lie about the muddy bottoms of the seas. What other riches or sources of adventure the ocean depths may hold, no man knows.

The recovery of the Egypt's treasure marks the culmination of a magnificent achievement. It has made brighter Neptune's invisible paths. This cry of triumph coming out of the Bay of Biscay heralds one less "fair pearl in the bosom of the sea."

A DOUBTFUL CHARGE

What are the facts in the case of A. T. Steele, correspondent of New York Times at Harbin, charged by the Japanese with having carried messages from the rebel leader General Ma Chen-shan to the League of Nations commission? Censorship obscures the picture, but there is some good evidence that Mr. Steele and a Swiss journalist named Lindt, also accused, were acting legitimately for their newspapers.

General Ma has a story to tell the League commission about conditions in Manchuria. The Japanese have taken care to see that he was not available to tell it. But the enterprising newspapermen got to him. It might easily be that to prevent the publication of the facts the Japanese trumped up a charge that the correspondents had violated their neutrality. The Earl of Lytton, chairman of the League commission, denies that he received any message from Ma through the newspapermen. The U. S. legation at Peking takes no stock in the Japanese charge. Mr. Steele has not been heard from, owing to censorship and the fact that to escape arrest he took refuge in the U. S. consulate at Harbin. We do not doubt that these correspondents are fresh victims of a censorship which was set up to keep the people of the world from knowing the truth about burning evils in Manchuria.—Editor & Publisher

CURE FOR INCURABLES

"This," said the doctor, "you must do, if health you would regain: Lie down and sleep from twelve to two. And somnolent remain And if should little Janet cry, Be deaf to every shout, And let some neighbor passing by Find what it's all about.

"Should you go by a man in need, Pretend you do not see, However sadly he may plead, Unworried you must be, 'Tis necessary you must learn To be as dumb as stone, And cares not of your own concern Leave utterly alone.

"Slow down the pace! Refuse the tasks Which every morning brings. And friendship off, unwitting, asks, Just give up doing things! See nothing that disturbs your mind, Hear nothing of men's woe. In short be dumb and deaf and blind Wherever you may go.

I hear his nervous tension speech And sadly not my head, But could I such indifference reach I might as well be dead. And so I've now made up my mind My sufferings to endure. Rather than be the stolid kind That doctors cure.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

OUR FRIENDS INSIST ON RESISTANCE

Several years of study, observation and research served to convince the conductor of this column there is no such state as "resistance" in the common sense of the word. Immunity is a well defined and in some instances measurable state and of course it applies to a specific disease. The state of "resistance" as commonly conceived does not apply to a particular disease but in a vague way to many or all diseases.

E. J. S. contributes this to the symposium:

We, the S— family, read your articles daily, discuss them, and derive much benefit from them. We desire to submit the following with regard to the resistance-immunity discussion.

IMMUNITY: Safe from attack, protected against a disease by a natural or acquired peculiarity. Immunity is a condition of the body where it resists the development of morbid processes.

RESISTANCE: A temporary power to ward off or retard the development of a morbid process.

If it were physically impossible for an individual to acquire any particular disease, then we would say that individual is immune to that disease. We would then classify the condition of being immune as 100 per cent. Then any degree of resistance would be below 100 per cent, say from 99 per cent down to zero.

Then W. R. O. jumps in while we are temporarily winded and remarks:

To my small mind it seems that if a person is only partly immune that in itself implies there must be some sort of resistance. Either that is true or I do not know enough about the English language to understand the meaning of the two words.

While the referee is rather hurriedly counting over our prostrate and groaning remains, Mrs. W. B. R. sends in her view:

Immunity means that a person does not get sick when he comes in contact with the disease germs. Resistance, to be of any value, must be absolute, perfect, complete. In other words, it must be immunity. This argument commenced in July, 1930. In April, 1932, H. F. A. succeeded in getting the floor, and he goes on and on—

You claim to conduct a health column but seem to waste a great deal of time and space quibbling over words. You spent a year or more (I guess you, child it must be fifteen years at least) trying to eliminate the word "cold" from the language, but very few people have this cry parentheses kree which you attempted to foist . . . now you have a grudge against the word "resistance" . . . a good and honorable word which means a lot . . . inherent meaning of the word is strength or power to withstand or stand against disease. This strength or power may vary in degree in different persons. Immunity means exemption from disease and is absolute. There is no such thing as partial immunity, though of course immunity may be temporary. . . .

I'm sorry that I coined the word, and after all I don't care what word you use, it's the idea conveyed that I am concerned about. Especially when a health factor is concerned.

My only objection to the term "resistance" is that it is vague. Nobody knows just what anybody means when he uses the word. Immunity is a word that has a definite meaning, and when a physician or health expert uses the term he refers specifically to some disease, not to many or all diseases.

Goats are immune from tuberculosis. Yet now and then a goat has tuberculosis. Practically there is probably no such thing as absolute or 100 per cent immunity against any disease. So our friends are indulging in idle and impractical speculation when they insist that partial immunity is of no value or doesn't occur.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE Hippo didn't seem to mind. In fact he acted very kind, when all the Tynies scrambled up on top of his big fat back.

He started moving very slow. Then Duncy shouted, "Oh, let's go! Somebody make this fellow up by giving him a whack."

So Coppy slapped the clumsy beast and very soon the speed increased. His waddling made the Tynies bob like corks upon the sea.

"Gee, something seems tattle me that we all will very soon fall flat. I feel myself ashopping and I'm nervous as can be."

Just then a little dog ran out. The Tynies heard brave Scoupy shout, "Get out of here. You'll scare this beast and he will run away."

"It's hard enough to hang on now, but we are mangling someone. The dog, however, barked and barked. It seemed to want to play."

This made the Hippo rather mad and, for the Tynies, 'twas too bad. As Mister Hippo swished his head, the whole bunch lost their hold.

And then the hippo swerved around. The Tynies toppled to the ground. It was a very funny sight, as in the dust they rolled.

"I've had enough of this," said one. "Gee, while it lasted, it was fun, but now let's go and watch the girl who walks upon a wire."

"They found her practicing nearby. She seemed away up near the sky, and Windy shouted, 'Careful, Miss, you best not go much higher.'"

It wasn't long till Duncy thought that on a wire that was held taut, he too could do some fancy stunts. The girl said, "Come, join me!"

With an umbrella in his hand, brave Duncy promptly took his stand upon the wire. He acted just as nervous as could be.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — The warm weather visitors are beginning to arrive. Not such great numbers of them as in past years, perhaps; but they're the same types, with the same plans for seeing and doing the same old things.

They begin to flock to this fair city about the time every New York resident who possibly can get away from town is packing up his things.

They are the tourists from smaller cities and towns, substantial family folk, many of them making their first, long-looked-forward-to trip to the big town. They are the trades convention delegates, ebullient fellows who look in a mind on business, the other half on the chance for a bit of butter-and-eggman horseplay in this devilish city.

Soon will come the summer school teachers with a thirst of Columbia's advanced training in pedagogy; collegians who'll use Columbia or the art schools as an excuse for sprinkling paper's coin in the relatively few play places open in summer.

Rubber Necks

The first class means bread and butter for the rubber neck wagon men. They are the ones who still think no trip to New York is complete without a visit to the aquarium and Grant's tomb. They hurry through the Metropolitan and Natural History museums as a sort of duty. They look in a mind on the summer girl revenues and get enough shocks to talk about back home for years to come.

The conventionites bring their wives, if they can't gracefully avoid it. At any rate, they'll be able to give the old business alibi for the couple of nights on the loose with fellow hodge-podge.

Entertainment committees see to it that they don't go back home without a session at a night club. They'll go back to Zenith and tell of their daring adventures, with many a wink and suggestion of things left untold.

The school teachers will work slishly, visit the historic spots and spend free evenings at the stadium concerts and the couple of serious and elevating dramas held over from the season.

The collegians, eds and co-eds—oh, well, why go into detail? Why cast doubt on the excuses they'll invent to wire home to dad all summer explaining the heavy cost of incidental in the pursuit of the higher learning in New York?

Do what they can, see what they can, these summer visitors—even though they come back again and yet again in the hot months—can't really get to know the New York that is worth writing home about.

The season here is from October to April, and it doesn't change much, even if more natives stay at home some summers when purses are thin. As for the rest of the months, the tall buildings stand in the same old places, it's true; but three-fourths of the doors to wonderland are closed. Coming here in summer is like visiting the dressing room of a famous beauty when she has removed all her make-up.

New York is the old show by the same name, but played by the third road company.

What's $25,000?

Al Woods, the producer, who has been having plenty of financial headaches, turned down one offer to go to the movies at $25,000 a week. A colorful gambler with the theatrical fates, he said he would rather keep on trying to slip two or three Broadway shows into the money which would bring more coin than several years on the west coast at such wages.

BOLSHEVIKS ROUTED

On July 3, 1918, Czechoslovakian forces routed the Bolshevik army in the region of Trutsk and the Russians went down to defeat. On the same day a mixed force of Bolshevik and Austro-German prisoners was put to route and the Czechs marched on to occupy Nikolayevsk, a naval station on the Amur river.

British air forces attacked Coblenz and Saarbrücken on this day and scored a complete victory over Germans, causing much damage in both cities.

On the western front Germans staged counter-attacks at Hamel, but were repulsed. Allied activity increased along the entire front, spurred on by the success of the past few days.

The Rumanian Senate ratified the treaty of peace with the central powers that had been ratified by the German Reichstag on July 3.

Roosevelt Not Weakling. He Shows Party

Nominee Gives Unqualified Indorsement to Democratic Platform

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Chicago—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt came to the Democratic national convention Saturday to accept in person the nomination that gave him as its candidate for the presidency and to proclaim the opening of the campaign with a 100 per cent indorsement of every plank of its platform.

Unprecedented as was his appearance to receive the formal notification that usually comes many weeks after a nominating convention, almost equally unprecedented was the straightforward way in which the nominee struck out at the main issues of the campaign. He let it be known that he was not in favor of "wild radicalism" as a solution for the nation's problems, but rather believed in constructive planning.

The delegates gave their nominee a cordial and enthusiastic demonstration. Former Gov. Al Smith of New York was absent, but the other candidates, including former Governor Byrd of Virginia and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, were there to greet Governor Roosevelt and pledge their support.

Most significant was the message read to the convention telling that Senator George Norris of Nebraska, Republican who bolted the Hoover ticket in 1928 to work for Smith, had declared he would support Roosevelt in the coming campaign. This means that Mr. Norris regards the Democratic nominee as a progressive, and it also confirms what the Nebraska senator has been saying all along, namely that Roosevelt's stand on the power issue attracted him.

The dramatic appearance of the New York governor after an airplane dash from Albany gave convincing evidence to the delegates that their candidate was not physically handicapped in traveling. As he stood on the rostrum and leaned over the pedestal his arms upraised and his face turned to the bright lights of the convention setting there was not the slightest suggestion of feebleness, but rather a suggestion of the old Rooseveltian vigor that characterized his famous kinsman of yore.

No Sign of Weakness
If some of the opponents of Mr. Roosevelt intend to make reference to his legs, made lame by the ravages of infantile paralysis, the delegates who saw him in action will carry back to their districts in every part of the country, refutation through visualization of his strong-appearing figure, able to give blows and receive them in the combat of a presidential campaign.

It is said that B. M. Baruch of New York, financial father of many campaigns first suggested to Mr. Roosevelt that he should come to Chicago. Anyway, it was a welcome idea to the delegates for they are returning home with personal impressions of the nominee. They also know his campaign ideas and have a better picture of the situation than usually grows from a national convention.

There was no doubt where Mr. Roosevelt stood with respect to the platform planks. He said that he felt the convention wanted repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the nominee wanted it and the United States wanted it. This was greeted with a noisy outburst from all sides of the stadium.

Selection of Speaker Garner of Texas, as the vice presidential nominee was a foregone conclusion as a consequence of the switch by Texas and California of their votes to Roosevelt on the fourth ballot. The convention named Mr. Garner without the formality of a roll call as he was the unanimous choice.

The Democratic national convention passes into history having avoided the pitfalls of 1924 and the discord of 1928 for though the Smith delegates were disappointed they joined in the nomination of Garner and gave every indication of supporting the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

554 Deaths Reported In 15-19 Age Group

Madison—(AP)—There were 554 deaths in the 15 and 19 year age group in Wisconsin last year, representing a reduction of 38 as compared with the previous year, the state board of health reported today.

Failure to play safe while driving and swimming were chiefly responsible for 169 accidental deaths that headed the list of causes of deaths in this age group. There were 74 deaths from auto accidents as compared with 64 in 1930.

The tuberculosis menace was checked at 75 deaths as compared with 107 in 1930. Heart disease constituted the third leading cause, taking 42 lives, while appendicitis claimed 40 victims in the age group.

Pneumonia stood fifth in importance with 36 victims and puerperal causes took the lives of 15 girls of the group. Nephritis also claimed 15 lives and was followed by influenza with a toll of 15 and suicide with 12.

3 Blazes Caused By Firecrackers

Damage Estimated at $100 Results When Tank Explodes

Three fires, none of which caused serious damage, were caused here over the weekend by firecrackers, according to records at the fire department. The most serious of the three occurred when a fuel tank outside the Automotive Regrinding and Welding company plant, 116 S. Superior-st, exploded about 2:25 yesterday afternoon. The explosion was caused, according to Fire Chief George P. McGillan when a prankster threw a lighted firecracker into the tank. The flames spread to several other empty oil barrels standing nearby and to the barn in the rear of the former Post Publishing company building. The chief estimated that the total damage would not exceed $100. An exploding firecracker set fire

The department also was called to the Frederick Barber shop, 620 W. College-ave, when an exploding firecracker set fire to an awning. The damage was slight. This fire occurred about 10:45 yesterday morning.

The SHOP WINDOW

By PEGGY POST

THE thrill of the week was found in none other place than the NEW TREASURE BOX SHOP! Yes, they've moved to the trickiest little place on the ground floor just across the street in the Odd Fellow bldg. You'll be all agog when you see the grand, big and charmingly niched shop with its glorious round and glowing ivy balls hanging in the window! It might be well to mention that this shop still has its rental (all decked out in a bright yellow case) corner and besides, an honest to goodness browsing book shop as well, where all the newest and cleverest books may be bought! Then over in another delightful corner is a darling children's department, quaintly roofed and cabined to hold all the delights of children's reading and playtime gadgets.

This is a week for surprises ... just follow me around town and like a shopping bloodhound I'll point out the highlights of the shopping district ... maybe things you didn't know before.

FOR INSTANCE, just across the street at ELLYN'S BEAUTY SHOP, above Voigt's drug store, you know, is the newest scientific invention. A machineless permanent wave! Does it sound possible? Ah, but it is and Elyn can now give you a soft, natural wave more easily than you can make a grand slam in an afternoon of bridge. All you do is sit comfortable in one of her chairs while she puts little gadgets on your hair that create their own heat and within the space of about seven minutes, presto! you will have a beautiful wave that will last a summer-time. No discomfort, no hair-drying machine hanging over your head and if you figure it in a modern woman's way, it takes just about two magazine novels' worth of time to have your hair permanently so you can read with ease while Beauty has its way. 411 is Elyn's number if you're interested.

One of the most interesting things about Appleton to outsiders is the wealth of gardens throughout the city, well kept flower gardens especially. They present such a beautiful atmosphere to backyards that have the bare clothesline effect in the usual city home.

Now that the fourth of July popping, national conventions and the summer house-cleaning is over we settle down to a bit of snooping about town with a genuine zest for shopping gossip.

THEN HOBBY HOUSE, that delightful shop in the Zuelke bldg, steps forth with a new corner devoted entirely to children. It's an adorable place near the window with a little cabinet full of surprises with a wee chair in front of it. You'll especially like the Mother Goose and alphabet books here among the hosts of well chosen children's books told in colorful picture story as well as words. An adorable nursery elephant lamp stands guard over the children's puzzles and games all neatly arranged and where a child may come in and look at them in his very own part of the store. It's terribly cute full of all those "numbers of things that" make kiddies as happy as kings.

SCUTTLING through PETTIBONE'S, a favorite habit of mine, I stood with awe in the second floor dress department, eyeing the delectable wash frocks at $3.95 and decided promptly that here were some gorgeous frocks for the price. Delightful things to finish the summer in with a grand gesture. Feather weight pouques with dashing sun back and golf shirt necks, alluring cardy stripes in brown, red and green and white combination that look like an animated barber pole on wide waisted pouque that are so smart this summer, and a host of other sport frocks that seem to go so smartly this 1932! Some have brief flag sleeves, some have pet short sleeves, while others have no sleeves at all. White predominates with a lovely flesh, blue, yellow green and here and there a bit of brown coming a close second for summer color harmony. Sizes by the way, run all the way from 13 and up for the debutante and up to 40 in the women's sizes.

AT THE VOGUE, down on College-ave, the song changes its tune to hats, up and coming summer models all going in a grand clearance for $1 this week. Fetching sport bonnets in wools such as zephyr weaves and delicious pink brimmed things, trim panamas with a bit of a ribbon band, crepe turbans and straws for more dressy occasions, oh, there are ever so many kinds and types. The clearance price alone ought to be enough to bring you out to buy a few new hats to round out your summer wardrobe with a bit of newness. No matter your headsize, be it diminutive from a shingled head or large from a becoming crown of glory, you'll find something here to suit your costume, purse and personality.

PROBABLY the nicest institutions we have left in this crumbling depressed world of ours is the three meal day, which is something to compensate for our other and sundry tri-tribbles. Even the three meal policy can be made interesting by the clever housewife or homess who has found out all by herself that fresh, sweet milk such as APPLETON PURE MILK (perfectly pasteurized) and the various other dairy products at this place make an economical basis for any good meal. Especially so when milk from this dairy is noted for its freshness and pure quality. Drunk fresh and sweet for breakfast, combined with fresh vegetables for luncheon and used in baking for some delectable dish, milk can take a thousand forms.

AS FOR HERNER'S HOSIERY SHOP on Oneida-st, your hearts will be quickened when I tell you about their knit suits. You already know that HERNER specializes in clever knitwear and now your chance to be one of their grand affairs at reduced prices. Three piece suits, lovely two piece angoras all have been ticketed in a grand clearance light suits, dark suits and a few knit dresses. The prices will knock you down. $2.95, $3.95, $5.95, $8.75, make the original values stagger and yet that's what they are, I saw them myself and many of them formerly cost as high as $16.75!

Authors at Capital Put Out New Book

Barkley, Tucker Say LaFollette Domination May be Tottering

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington — The LaFollette "domination of three decades may be tottering in Wisconsin," say Frederick R. Barkley and Ray Tucker in their new book, "Sons of the Wild Jackass."

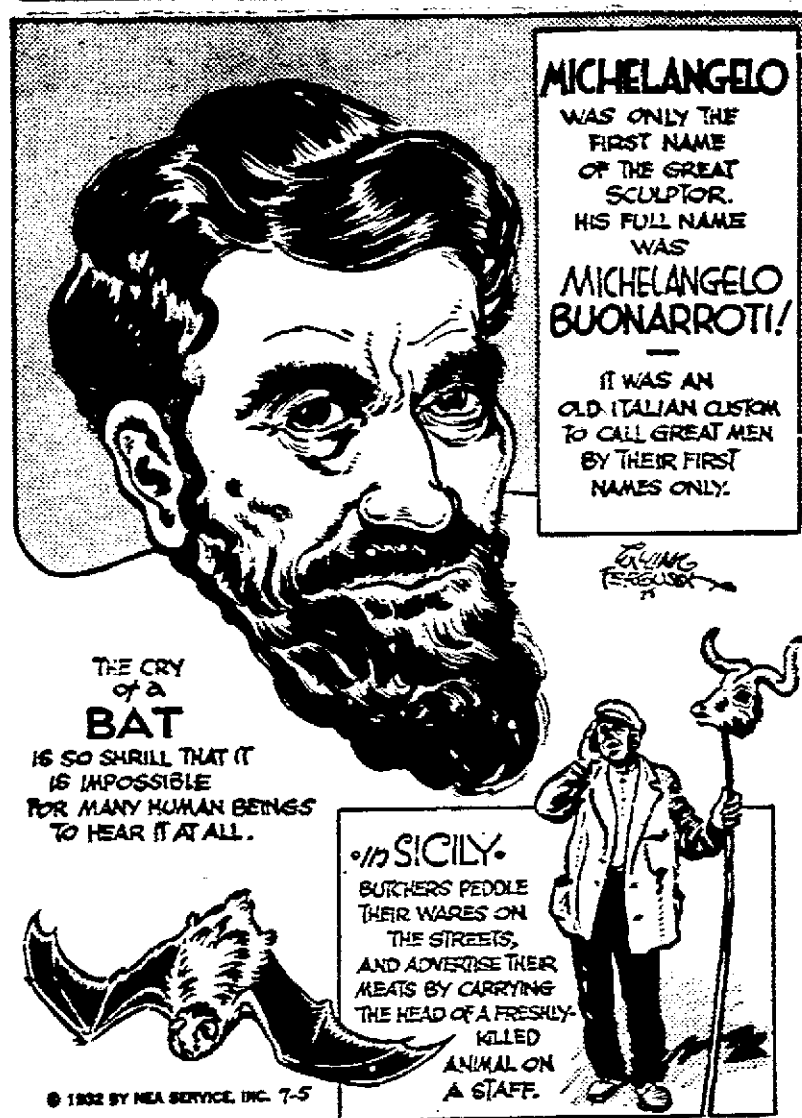

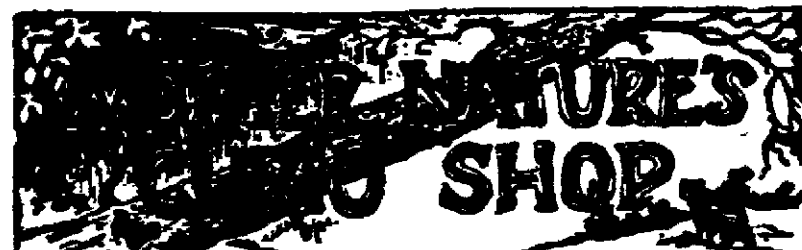

The book, which has chapters on the leading insurgent senators of the west, together with a chapter on Sen. George H. Moses of New Hampshire, labeled "Mule-Skinner Moses," author of the designation, "Sons of the Wild Jackass," devotes a long chapter to Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., but no chapter and only a few passing phrases to his colleague, Sen. John J. Blaine. The original intention, Author Barkley says, was to give one chapter to Blaine, Sen. Robert B. Howell of Nebraska, Sen. Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, and Sen. Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, but the publishers were in too big a hurry and the authors, both Washington newspaper correspondents, were too rushed, what with national conventions and all, to get that chapter done.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the book is the publisher's "explanation" which leads it off. It seems that L. C. Page, president of L. C. Page and company, Boston publishers, thought it would be a good idea to have a book written "showing up" the western insurgents and using the title popularized by Moses. So he set out to find an author.

Failing to get the first one he sought, because that one, while agreeing with the publisher's ideas on the westerners, regarded Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho as somewhat "a demigod and political idol" while Page thought him "an over-estimated man whose long suit is inconsistency," and the proposed author thought the LaFollette boys were "cubs of a great lion" while the publisher thought "they were tame kittens."

Then the publisher got sick and had to go to Europe and left the job of selecting the author to the managing editor, who selected Ray Tucker, author of the at-first-anonymous book, "Mirrors of 1932," and erroneously described in one of the blurbs as one of the authors of "Washington Merry-Go-Round," a much more popular anonymous book which Robert S. Allen of Madison, Wis., and Drew Pearson actually wrote.

"Imagine the frame of mind of the publisher when, on reading the proof, he found that . . . the author and the publisher were as far apart as the poles," says Page in his explanation. Anyhow, the book was nearly suppressed, but was eventually published with Page's explanation.

The LaFollette chapter is signed by Barkley of the Washington bureau of the Baltimore Evening Sun, whom Tucker got to help him write the book, but Barkley says Tucker wrote the final draft, making some changes from the draft he wrote.

The cartoons throughout are unutterably bad. The caricature of LaFollette is at least recognizable, although it contains the sideburns which "Young Bob" shaved off about four years ago, an incident mentioned in the chapter as resulting from "some playful publicity." "The playful publicity" to which Barkley probably referred was a piece written by Henry L. Menckchen at the 1928 Republican convention saying, as I remember it, that the sideburns made "Young Bob" look "like a drugstore cowboy."

Darkened Days
Of the present Wisconsin situation, the book says:
"In fact, these seem to be dark days for the LaFollette dynasty. It has suffered several set-backs in Wisconsin, and the domination of three decades may be tottering. Old lieutenants of the father are dying, and the new generations do not show the same interest in politics or government.

"It must be that Wisconsin has lived too long within the radiance and heat of the LaFollette flame, and grows slightly weary of the strain. In other sections, too, there is evidence that the people, tempted by the attractions of a jazz and mechanical age, are turning away from political temples."

The LaFollette legend is rehearsed, and includes the error that "Young Bob" refers to the days "when we were governor." It was actually his father who used the phrase. Persons close to the young senator say they never heard him use it.

The book is doubtless right in saying, "however, 'They' (the LaFollette brood) give the impression that they are not individual entities so much as manifestations of a great political personality."

before his feet could reach the floor than most senators learn during their tenure of office. This knowledge of parliamentary law has been especially notable during the past week, when some major victories came from just that knowledge.

He is, furthermore, credited with having a fuller grasp of economic problems than the older progressives, and it is told that he surrounds himself with economists, having one as a clerk in his office and being in frequent conference with such younger economists as Isidor Lubin, Stuart Chase and George Soule.

For Specializations
"He is one senator," the book comments, "who realizes that this is a day of specialization, and he has taken industrial and economic problems as his specialty. If at times he seems indifferent to other questions touching liberal thought, it is because he is buried in the question of economic planning, of overhauling the present system in order that peaks of prosperity and depression may be so involved that the average man will find them less perilous to life, liberty and happiness."

His chief fault, according to the authors, is lack of a sense of humor, "which lightens the load and shortens the road." He doesn't see jokes unless they are ironic, they say. They recount some irony he used in floor fights.

He lacks the theatrical attributes of his father, they judge, but sometimes does dramatic things. He is not, they report, as good a "rabble-rouser" as his brother Phil, and he has "a certain tautness and grimness of spirit."

"Several dangers beset him," they continue, "partly due to his own temperament and partly due to the circumstances of the new conflict. He has, it seems, become too abrupt in manner, too solemn in bearing, too absorbed in detail—for a political leader."

After recounting the personal misfortunes which have recently beset him—the death of his mother and of his first-born—as a possible explanation of the "streak of sadness," the authors say:

"He does not, of a certainty, display the fire looked for in a LaFollette; he does not make the personal appeal so abundant in his father and in his younger brother, Phil."

Tucker and Barkley play with the idea of "Young Bob's" ambitions. "There are those," they say, "including men close to him, who believe that he would some day like to be president. How deep the germ has been implanted is not known.

"G. O. P. Reform?"

"Does he, in his musing, contemplate a reformed G. O. P. which will accept a tempered son of 'Old Bob'? Or does he intend to embrace regularly himself? Or is he simply a young man in an ambitious hurry?"

There seems to be little evidence that he is about to "embrace regularity," as was predicted when he was applauded at the 1928 convention after he presented the minority platform, at first greeted with jeers. He has certainly been as irregular in the last four years as he ever was, and his major insurgencies have come in that period.

His most spectacular and far-reaching exploit has been the abolition of secret sessions of the senate on presidential nominations, resulting, according to the authors in bringing "the supreme court of the United States under the control of public opinion for the first time in the nation's history."

Other achievements listed include his fight on the tariff bill in 1929, which succeeded sweepingly for a while and then collapsed entirely; his investigations of needs for relief and of causes of economic depressions and methods of economic planning. His relief investigations first failed to produce any legislation, his bill being defeated, but now legislation is nearing enactment, although not altogether along the lines LaFollette sought. His economic planning idea seems doomed to failure in congress, or, even if enacted, possibly doomed to being thrown out by the supreme court under a decision recently rendered from which LaFollette's friend, Justice Louis D. Brandeis, vigorously dissented.

"Vapor Lock" May Be Tragic

"VAPOR LOCK." That's the motor expert's all-too-kindly term for a downright dangerous trick which unreliable gasoline is so likely to play in the overheat of summer.

You know the miserable sensation! You're clipping along all O. K. Then just as you step on it for a sudden—maybe very necessary—spurt, the power flats out to sickening nothingness. Likely as not it's a complete stall—with minutes to wait before you can start again.

Wadhams summer gasolines avoid this life-and-death hazard by the exclusive process of

"Seasonal Re-Balancing"

No vapor lock when you have this safeguard! This scientific process insures correct summer volatility of the gasoline, but without approach to the danger line of pre-volatility.

That's what makes the deadly heat-lock . . . gasifying of the liquid before carburetion, so that vacant, power-starved bubbles form as does air in steam pipes.

Unreliable gasolines, bought at haphazard, cannot protect you from this danger. Trust Wadhams—trust the important "Re-Balancing" feature that no other gasoline can give you.

A resolution was passed fixing one per cent of the proceeds from the sale of the creamery shall pay into the general fund, this assessment to become operative Jan. 1, 1933. Anton Loehr of St. John, organizer and first president of the union expressed the desire that the time would soon come when a milk strike might be declared. He cautioned the delegates against expecting relief from the union immediately, stating that the problem of the dairy farmer is not one which can be solved in a day. He expressed the belief that if the producers would withhold their milk from the market for one week the price would rise; in two weeks it would double; while in four weeks the world would be clamoring for food.

He advised the union to organize as labor unions. He maintained that the only people who can bring back employment are the farmers. As soon as they are fair prices for their products, they will go into the market and buy, and the factories will resume operations.

A constitution, and by laws were adopted, and provision made for a convention of the locals in each county annually. Each county will elect two delegates at these conventions to send to the state convention which is also to be held annually. When a milk strike is proposed it is to be submitted to all the members, the action of the majority to determine the outcome. A resolution was adopted calling on President Hoover to take necessary action to fix the price of milk at $2 per hundred weight, the resolution citing the precedents established during the World War when a price was fixed on wheat.

Cling to Ideals Of Forefathers, Scheller Advises

Evils of Communism Pointed Out by Manawa Attorney at Picnic

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—Speaking at the Community hospital auxiliary picnic Monday, A. M. Scheller, Manawa, pointed out the evils of communism and called attention to the conditions in our country and state which will make Independence Day worth preserving. That all teaching which tend to show that the democratic form of government is wrong are to be avoided and that the intelligent use of our powers of voting need deep consideration and our best thought was stressed by him.

The speaker called attention to the writing of would be leaders and copies of speeches made by those who are filled with a desire to tear down the very structure of the country's standards.

"These people call for dangerous weapons with which to remedy the present world illness," Mr. Scheller said. "They ask for such things as war, they ask that we throw out everything that has contributed to the growth of the country that we may have a new deal. What would be gained were we to listen? Nothing could possibly follow but havoc more deplorable than any we have ever experienced. Only by strict adherence to the principles which made it worth while for our forefathers to strive for, only by wisely following out the intelligent basic ideas put forth by those leaders who cling with faith to the high ideals first founded for and by American people can we hope to come back to normalcy."

Shiocton Defeats New London Nine

Visitors Score 10 to 1 Victory in Exhibition Game

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—The New London baseball team lost an exhibition game Monday afternoon to Shiocton, 10-1. Bud Swaidy, who leaves Wednesday to join the navy, had a big day at bat, getting two doubles and a single. Bessert and Edminister of the locals had two hits each.

Shiocton took the lead in the first inning with New London tying the score in the second. That finished the home team for the day, though they managed to load the bases twice. Miller's drive and slow balls which he kept on the corners of the plate gave his team mates an easy afternoon. Shiocton sewed up the game in the third when they scored three times. In the sixth the visitors ran wild, scoring four times, and in the eighth and ninth they sent home two more runs. The lineup follows:

DUST

DOUBLES HOUSEWORK

Nothing increases housework so much as a dusty highway. When road dust continually blows in, the floors are gray and gritty a short time after cleaning. Furniture and rugs are dusty. Dusting becomes a continuous round of doing the job over and over.

When you put a stop to road dust, you save half the housework, and it is very easy to make the dustiest road completely dustless in a few hours.

You know how a light rain settles the dust. Flakes of Dowflake Calcium Chloride act like a light rain. They quickly draw moisture and bind dust to the road. They hold this moisture for weeks so the road stays dustless. You can stop dust at once with the clean, odorless, dustlayer—Dowflake.

Get rid of this ball and chain now. Make an end to this tedious round of doing housecleaning work over and over because of dust.

Ask your highway official about dust control with Dowflake. Write today for our booklet "How To Control Dust".

Other Woman Mentioned in Murder Trial

Doctor Tells of Events in Barney Apartment After
Stephen Slaying

London — (AP)—An unidentified "other woman" figured in the sensational murder trial of Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, beautiful blonde former actress, as the trial entered its second day at the Old Bailey today.

Mrs. Barney, the estranged wife of an American singer and member of the London west-end smart club, is accused of the murder of Michael Scott Stephen, 26-year-old son of a prominent financier. Stephen was shot and killed in her apartment May 31.

The testimony concerning another woman in the case was introduced by a Dr. Durant whom Mrs. Barney called to her apartment after the shooting, in the early morning hours. He gave a detailed account of what he saw.

Stephen was dead when he entered the apartment, the doctor said, and Mrs. Barney, overwrought and hysterical, was kissing the body again and again, babbling incoherently.

She told him she and Stephen had quarreled the evening before over the other woman, the witness said, but later they had become reconciled. The quarrel was resumed after a visit to a night club, however, he said she told him, and then Stephen threatened to leave the flat and go to the other woman.

Tells of Struggle

She then threatened to kill herself, the doctor said she told him, but Stephen grabbed the revolver which was lying on a chair and started away. Mrs. Barney followed him, he quoted her as saying, and they struggled. The revolver went off in the struggle.

Dr. Durant said Mrs. Barney was "in a crazy state of mind" and could not have invented an explanation that was not true.

At the conclusion of yesterday's session she collapsed. White and trembling, she left the dock with a wardress supporting each arm. She remained controlled during most of the doctor's testimony, however, but wept at intervals. She was dressed in somber black, relieved only by little strips of white on her hat and a wisp of her almost platinum blonde hair which protruded from beneath its brim.

SYNOPSIS: Warned not to betray the location of a mysterious island where Limpy Ashwood, a cultured gang leader is holding six prisoners for ransom, Jerry Calhoun hopes his friends, Emory Battle and Stevens, a detective, will rescue him. He has come incognito, planning to help one of the prisoners, Nancy Wentworth.

Chapter 19
AN ISLAND PRISON
THERE, on the beach, was their monoplane. Half-way to the house, a little procession, led by Emory and Stevens, was plodding through the sawgrass. Behind his two companions strode four guards, one of whom held an automatic.

"Well, well, well, Captain Calhoun!" Ashwood turned to Jerry with a sardonic smile. "Now that I observe your comrade, Lieutenant Battles, coming to join our merry group, it seems hardly worth while for you to remain incognito, and as I live and breathe, if this ain't the admirable Stevens! Well, well, what a wonderful little reunion!" Emory waved an unabashed greeting to Jerry, then fell to studying the face of the white-haired criminal. Looking about him with his faded blue eyes, caught Jerry's glance.

"Joke on us, kid," he said gloomily. "I'm losing my grip." Then, turning to Ashwood, he smiled amiably: "Hello, Limpy. Haven't seen you in a long time—professionally, that is."

"Let's hope that this isn't a professional visit," Ashwood protested suavely. "After you have conferred with the dictates of your conscience, you will realize that your shield in my safe and enjoy yourself for the remainder of your stay on the island. I've always longed to make your acquaintance under suitable circumstances, you know."

"Listen, Limpy," said Stevens, drily. "I'm getting pretty old to change my ways. If you are still free a couple of years from now—which I doubt—come out and pay me a visit at my pecan grove in California. Then we can be good as sociable. But between now and then I'm on Uncle Sam's pay roll and I got to try to earn my pay, which, God knows, isn't much."

"Dear, dear, such nobility of character!" sighed Ashwood, plaintively. "It is so stimulating, I'm sure you will enjoy meeting Mr. Lucci."

"No," grunted Stevens. "I don't even enjoy thinking about him, much less meeting him. I'm going to have to kill that feller some day."

"Please wait," cried the cripple in mock alarm. "Until I have collected my final board bill from his loving and loyal friends' pockets."

"I've got it," interrupted Emory, suddenly. "Jerry, this is the bird we rescued from the British M. P.'s after the big party at the Claridge."

He turned again to Ashwood. "My God, you've changed! What in the world happened to you to make you look like this?"

The scene came back to Jerry in a flash. A gay, rollicking British pilot, who had been drifting about with them all evening, from cafe to cafe. Then, after they had parted with assurances of life-long affection and entered the two tanks had heard a sudden uproar and had raced through the darkened streets to find the young lieutenant in the clutches of three burly military police. With shouts of joy Jerry and Emory had fallen upon the patrol and, after a glorious fight, had saved their new friend from a probable court martial. After another drink together, the three had departed for their respective units. And there they were again, reunited at last—and under what circumstances!

Ashwood looked first at Emory, then at Jerry, thoughtfully.

"Come in, gentlemen. We'll have a drink and a little talk." Nodding to the guards who departed forthwith, he led the way to the dining room.

Ashwood was the first to speak. "All of us make mistakes at one time or another, but I had complied myself that this little retreat of mine was well hidden. Since frankness is at this moment desirable, I wonder if you would mind telling me how you found this island?"

"Simplicity itself," grinned Jerry, unhesitatingly. "We flew over you when you picked up that money of Montauk point and followed you as far south as Atlantic City. We established, on that flight, the fact that your base was somewhere south of the Jersey shore. When you picked up the satchel on Lake Michigan, we were flying over you at better than 20,000 feet, keeping in the sun so you wouldn't spot us. I followed you clear down to a point on the Delaware, where we had to land. But since you were steering a perfectly straight compass course all day long, I second only reasonable to suppose that if we followed the same course the next morning, we'd find your hide-away sooner or later. And we did."

Ashwood smoked silently. Then he smiled wryly.

"How elementary! It is, I think the first serious slip I have made since I entered this highly diverting profession. I should most certainly have followed an irregular course and taken more care to watch for pursuing planes. It was your attitude and position that misled me."

His thoughtful eyes were fixed in a moody stare. Then, pulling himself out of his momentary abstraction, he glanced at the three with sudden decision.

"I have a proposition to make in all seriousness and I am honest when I tell you that I hope it will be accepted. This island, as a prison, is as escape-proof as the strongest cell in the Tower of London. You haven't a dog's chance to escape and I hope that you won't attempt it. It would be absolute suicide. My guards have orders to shoot to kill every time they pull trigger."

"Stevens, I have the greatest respect in the world for you. Of all the policemen and detectives of one sort or another who have tried to trace this or that little matter to me, you have come the nearest to success. But you are to late, now, I have decided before you have an last trick and before you have an opportunity to use the evidence you now have against me, I will be in a spot where extradition will be impossible."

He turned to Jerry.

"Calhoun, there was something about that turbulent evening we three had in London that has remained in my memory throughout these many years. As things turned out, it was the last really happy thing I ever had. Disasters of which there is no need to speak began a day or two later; things over which I had no control changed the entire course of my life. That is why, perhaps, I have a decidedly friendly feeling toward both of you."

"I am sorry that you two fellows have by chance, been thrown into this affair. I'm sorry that we are, this time, on opposite sides of the fence. You cannot possibly win. My exist are too carefully worked out."

He lighted another cigarette amid thoughtful silence. When he spoke again there was no mistaking the sincerity in his voice.

"Now my proposition. Give me your parole until, for one cause or another, I permit you voluntarily, to leave this island. I shall do so, believe me, within three weeks at the most, perhaps much sooner. If you make me this promise not to interfere, you will be treated as guests and made as comfortable as we know how."

Turning to Stevens, he declared candidly:

"Old man, I would not suggest this if I thought you had a sporting chance of accomplishing what you are paid to do."

He glanced briefly at the other two and his voice suddenly grew hard and cold.

"Alternative, gentlemen, is this: I shall give you what freedom I can. But my men will watch you. If at any time, you become dangerous to the success of our undertaking, we will not have the slightest hesitancy about killing you in cold blood, even though I should regret it later. There is too much at stake to permit interference."

"I may add this," he leaned across the table, his mouth tight and grim. "In the past few years I have come to regard human life as a matter of the slightest possible import. The world went on merrily for hundreds of thousands of years before we gadded it with our presence. If I am forced to kill one, or all three of you, the affairs of the world will still function without interruption. You will be mourned by a few, but in the face of the appalling fast propagation of the human race your loss will be slight and soon forgotten."

"Now what's the answer?" The grim lines were suddenly erased. His eyes twinkled again. "Let me remind you that your parole cannot conceivably affect the final results, one way or another."

Art Behr Hurls Kimberly to Victory Over Green Bay Sox

Southpaw Is Touched for Eight Blows

Home Run by Fritz Hribernik Brings Rapids Win Over Appleton

GREEN BAY—Kimberly broke the tie for the first place in the Valley league here on Monday by defeating the Rays in a 4-1 10 inning game before a big home crowd. Hackbart's single, after a walk and error, put the fray on ice for the Papermakers. A one handed stab by Ruppenthal, Bay right fielder, featured defensively.

Art Behr, released by Appleton last week made his debut for the Papermakers and turned in an excellent exhibition. Although touched for eight blows Behr was stingy in the pinches and showed eight strikeouts. He walked two batters.

SUNDAY'S GAMES OFF

Sunday's program of Valley league ball games was washed into the postponed list by the rain.

Calling the Strikes

New York — (CPA) — Once again Col. Jacob Ruppert of the New York Yankees has put in this thumb and pulled out a plum from the baseball pie. This time it is the signing of Charley Devens, six foot star hurler of Harvard.

Young Devens, who is a right hander and weighs about 175, is considered one of the greatest pitchers that ever wore the Crimsons. If you have watched the records of Harvard's games this spring you have noted more often than not when Devens was on the mound, "struck out—by Devens 13" or some other such figure. He also lays into the ball with a heavy bat. It is said that Col. Ruppert put in the highest bid against several other major teams. It would be a good guess that the youngster received a $10,000 bonus for signing the contract. He reported to the Yanks Thursday.

Pond All Stars Cop Two Games, Lose One Over Weekend

Beat New London 9 and 0; Divide Honors With Oshkosh Fowlers

POND ALL STARS softball aggregation played three games over the weekend and copped two, one from New London on Sunday morning by a score of 9 and 0, the other from the Fowler fowls of Oshkosh Monday afternoon. The one defeat came Monday morning at the hands of the Oshkosh club.

The defeat Monday was hung up despite the fact Mortell hurled good ball for the locals. The team flopped at the plate and collected but five hits off the invader hurler and the game ended 5 and 1.

In the afternoon Ray Crane took the mound for the Stars and with a good tongue lashing ringing in their ears from the one Monday afternoon, team manager, the Stars peaked up and copped a 10 and 4 decision behind the hurling of Ray Crane.

Crane was slaky at the start of the battle and Oshkosh picked up a 3 and 0 lead. He then settled down and the Star bats began to click.

The two games scheduled with the Racine Fish Market team were cancelled because of the prospects of bad weather. The Fowlers were then secured.

Van Wyck and Wheeler connected for home runs in the fourth. The Oshkosh boys gave Pond's six runs in the sixth. In the sixth an error and a walk let Schroeder score. Chaff 'n Chatter

DR. PATRICK O'CALLAGHAN, who won the hammer throw for Ireland in the 1928 Olympic games, stepped out the other day for practice and heaved the thing 183 feet 10 inches. Why are the Irish such wonderful people at throwing?

Reply! You May Win Prize!

The Phils have become the burning sensation of the National League. Does anybody know any good reason why any team in the loop cannot become "the sensation of the league" simply by winning a double-header?

Well Then, Why Not?

Gunboat Smith was praised by the New York Athletic Commission for the manner in which he conducted the Schmeling-Sharkey fight. And will they carve his name—Gunboat Smith—on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy, and if not, why not?

Because He's Nice

Mr. Paavo Nurmi, still under suspension by the International Athletic Federation, has been cracking records in tryouts for the marathon and other distance runs on the Olympic program. What reason will the I. A. A. F. give when they reinstate Mr. Nurmi just before the games begin?

Ask Mr. Hagen

Nobody picked Walter Hagen to win the National Open and it is becoming apparent that Hagen can't win. Why doesn't Walter buy glasses? And why does he stab with his putter like a white wing picking up papers in a park?

Ah! 1928 Is Long Ago

Percy Williams, the heroic Canadian sprinter who is trying to get into shape for the Olympic games, was a high school boy when he won the 100 and 200 meters at Amsterdam in 1928. Yet, why do most people think of Percy Williams now as an old man?

But It's Legal

Manager Bill Killefer of the Browns is the man who engineered the deal that sent Red Kress to the White Sox in return for Bump Hadley and Bruce Campbell. Who doesn't somebody have Bill Killefer arrested for swindling?

Yes, Many Have

Moving pictures of the Schmeling-Sharkey engagement show that very few cards were struck. Does anybody have a "what if" why heavyweight wrestling is so popular?

Or a Black Eye

The nearest approach to Jack Dempsey in the sports world today is Gene Sarazen. Gene can glare, Sarazen for becoming a gladiator instead of a boxer when you consider that very seldom does a gladiator suffer for a cauliflower ear?

Not Very Easily

Commentators are making Campbell of the Browns as the best young outfielder of the year. Could they explain what makes Campbell a better outfielder than Roger Cramer of the Athletics?

It Might Make You Jealous

The Cardinals have signed Gabby Street to manage the club again in 1933. Why doesn't the Cardinal front office announce what wages it is paying the Old Sarge?

Sarazen Vs. Jones

Many enthusiastic essays are declaring Gene Sarazen is just as good as Bobby Jones ever was. Why wasn't Sarazen just as good as Jones from 1922 to 1930 when both of them were playing the same courses?

The Cleveland Indians, after three double headers in one week in which they won six of the eight games, have concluded that two games a day means good luck.

Sport Club Defeated By Croton Eagles, 5-0

Appleton sport club soccer team was defeated by the Croton Eagles of Milwaukee Monday at the Third ward field, the score being 5 and 0. The invaders outclassed the Appleton club which sared a hard battle to hold its own. The Crotons were a tall, clean, well built group of players many of them comparatively young. One of the youngsters on the team was a chap of 18 years who proved the sensation of the afternoon with his clever footwork and handling of the ball. Most of the players had been in the Appleton Milwaukee schools. The Appleton team will play at Milwaukee sometime next month.

Max Baer Pounds Levinsky's Body To Win Decision

Chicago Fish Peddler Is Given Edge in but Four Rounds

RENO, Nev. — Max Baer's ceaseless body attack on King Levinsky of Chicago gave the Californian a victory in the 20 round Fourth of July ring battle here before 8000 fans, including many motion picture stars.

The former Livermore, Calif., butcher boy, in the opinion of ringside critics, won decisively over the former fish peddler. But the same critics paid tribute to the gameness of the Chicago battler, who took much punishment but never gave up.

George Blake the referee, credited Baer with 14 rounds, Levinsky with five and called one a draw.

It was the Californian's second decision victory over his opponent. He won the first in a 10-round fight in New York last year.

Though the 20 rounds were furiously fought there was no knockdown. Levinsky's haymaker swings to his opponent's jaw failed to slow up the slugging Baer.

The Chicago Kingfish, on the other hand, refused to fall before the body barrage which sapped his strength.

Levinsky, who came into the ring at 160 pounds, was outweighed six pounds. He challenged the superiority of the heavier opponent by slugging attacks in the first and second and ninth and tenth rounds.

After that the fight was all Baer's. Levinsky's handier revealed after the fight that charge, injured his right hand in their third round as he connected with Baer's elbow. The Kingfish's knuckles were badly swollen and he was forced to go to a Hot Springs for treatment.

The eight thousand fans paid $23.00 to see the battle in an arena built by Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion. Dempsey saw the fight.

Senators Win 2 Games From N. Y. Yankees

Pittsburgh Increases N. L. Lead by Twice Out Slugging Cubs

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

I F the New York Yankees should make a runaway of the American league pennant race this year, it won't be the fault of Walter Johnson's Washington Senators.

Knocking over the leaders twice in their fourth of July double-header, the Senators became the first club in the league to gain an edge over the Yankees in games won and lost this season. Of the three teams, Senators and Yankees have played this season, Washington has won nine.

The Senators snapped Vernon Gomez's 11-game winning streak in the opener, 5-3, gauging the Castilian for three runs in the seventh and eighth. They turned the second battle in a score by scoring six runs in the third inning and winning 12-6 despite homers by Larry Crockett and Ruth, the latter's twenty-third of the season. Manush and Harris clouted homers for the winners.

Taking advantage of the enforced idleness of the Philadelphia Athletics, the Senators moved into second place by defeating the St. Louis Browns twice, 2-0 and 12-7. The Tigers are virtually tied with the Athletics in games won and lost but hold second place on percentage. Earl Whitehill pitched one of the greatest games of his career in holding the Browns to one hit, a single by Goslin. The second game was a slugfest in which the Tigers clinched with a six run rally in the third frame.

Cleveland won the first game from Chicago, 4-2, as Wes Ferrell pitched his fifteenth victory of the year, but the Indians succumbed to Ted Lyons' mastery in the nightcap, 2-1.

In the National league, the Pittsburgh Pirates increased their lead to a game and a half by outslugging the Chicago Cubs twice, 6-0 and 6-5. The Corsairs came from behind in both games, rapping Burleigh Grimes out of the box in the midst of a six

Poor Publicity On Stock Market

New York—With the argument advanced by Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard before the senate committee investigating the stock market for greater publicity with regard to corporation affairs this matter is in complete accord.

The claim that such publicity would in itself discourage speculation is not so self-evident. There is adequate publicity with regard to the affairs of the railroads and yet it has not lessened speculative activity either in the bond market or in the stock market. In the last three years alone not in the last market of today. In the one case railway stocks were bought on all sorts of reports of mergers and in the other of reports of confidence expanding around a confidence man's personal career. It is asserted by the same students of finance that while the Interstate Commerce commission is not a failure to believe that it is failing to discourage speculation as Professor Ripley seems to think. However this is all beside the point. For the protection of the investor as distinguished from the speculator there must and will be more publicity than with regard to the railroads and the trusts and industrial corporations. Meanwhile the public has in its hands the means of knowing itself of the way will. There is no reason for him in a position for a profitable employment if he has funds to invest the group of corporate managements whose characteristics in this respect is above criticism. No one can say, for instance, that United States Steel, or General Motors or American Telephone and Telegraph have been in any sense in forcing the public as a weak financial class.

If the financial class on acceptance of a rumor instead of official reports factious instead of fact, the corporation is not to blame. The trouble is as Dr. Ripley told the senators no one can draw a clear line between investment and speculation. Even the individual who buys a security is not a speculator. The cause lies between the two in his own case.

Hundreds at Post Picnic In City Park

Rain Causes Cancellation of Sunday Program At Kaukauna

Kaukauna—Several thousand persons gathered in Kaukauna Monday for the annual celebration of July 4 under the auspices of the Kaukauna Post No. 41, American Legion. No picnic was held here Sunday because of rain. A two-day celebration had been planned by the Legion post. Louis Wilpolt and Albert Klammer were the joint chairmen of the committee in charge. The picnic was held at LaFollette park.

There was no parade, but music was furnished at the park by the Kaukauna high school band. In the evening fireworks were shot off over the river from Tourist park. Concessions were in the park.

Special attractions included acts by members of a flying circus. Aerialists performed in the center of the park. The performers were Miss Hazel Corcoran and the Flying Circus. All performers were formerly with circuses.

Members of the Legion committee handling the arrangements were Dale Andrews, post commander, Arthur Schmalz, Olin C. Dryer, Ed Haas, Arthur Schubring, Harry Treprow and S. J. Mangold.

ENLARGE BASS REARING POND

Stephensville and Shiocton members of the Outagamie Fish and Game Protective association were not satisfied with the 500 seven-inch bass they took out of their bass rearing pond in town Ellington last year. So they turned out recently and spent a day enlarging the pond to care for more fish this year. The workers shown in the picture are: Al VanStraten, Mike Mack Jr., Jim Feyton and Lucius Collar, all of Shiocton; Conrad Schwab, Ed Schwab, Frank Plath and Charles Steidl, all of Stephensville. The latter is a member of the county highway police and was recently injured in a motorcycle accident. In spite of the fact that he had only been discharged from the hospital the day before, and that his broken leg was still in a cast necessitating the use of crutches to get around, he was present to supervise and direct the work.

Brownson Urges Seed Inoculation

Shiocton High School Instructor to Demonstrate With Samples

BY W. F. WINSEY
Shiocton—In his class room and among farmers, W. D. Brownson, agricultural instructor of the Shiocton high school, is strenuously urging boys and men to inoculate legume seed before planting to assist in getting satisfactory stands and yields.

He explains to beginners and to experienced farmers that legume, such as alfalfa, sweet clover, peas, beans, and soybeans, have the power of drawing most of the nitrogen in their ration from the air at no expense to the grower and that the surplus of nitrogen which is one of the most expensive elements in fertilizer mixtures is stored in nodules on the roots of the legumes. If there are no nodules on the roots, sufficient nitrogen is not drawn from the air for the support of the plants and no surplus can be stored that may be taken by crops following the legumes.

Mr. Brownson, County Agent G. A. Sell, and fieldmen of canning companies, have considerable trouble as they cannot show the nitrogen gathering machinery of legumes in operation nor the nitrogen, not the nitrogen being absorbed by the tissues of legumes, nor the surplus nitrogen being stored in nodules. In the erection of a building all the material and the methods of construction are visible and may be applauded or condemned by those interested. But in the building of plants all that can be seen is the plant and its growth from day to day.

Conscious of the differences in the process of building, and plant construction, Mr. Brownson is making a collection of alfalfa plants grown from inoculated seed and al-

Rain Beneficial To Pastures, Crops On County Farms

Sweet Clover Supplying Ample Feed for Cattle in Some Sections

BY W. F. WINSEY

Corn, small grain, sweet clover, and sugar beets, unusually good for this year in the towns of Freedom, and Kaukauna are improving rapidly as a result of the late rains. Although permanent pastures on some of the farms are bare, sweet clover on most of the farms supply more feed than the herds can handle. As alfalfa on a large proportion of the fields winterkilled, nearly all of the hay being cut and cured is timothy this summer.

Two hundred acres of sugar beets near this village are in the best of condition and are promising large yields. The early crop of canning yielded well for this season, and the late crop was cleared of lice by the late rains and will do well from now until vining time. The ground is saturated to the depth of 12 inches and was muddy Friday forenoon.

Farmers are in the fields making hay, but the crop is light and a forced substitute for sweet clover and alfalfa. In the town of Vandenberg, one of the big centers of alfalfa raising in Outagamie-co., alfalfa fields are widely separated this summer. In all the townships mentioned, the farmers have planted large acreages of Sudan grass to be used as emergency hay. A few have planted buckwheat and flax.

After cutting the crop, Martin Van Asten is plowing a six-acre so of other alfalfa plants grown from seed not inoculated.

Using this collection he compares the size of the plants from treated seed with that of those from untreated seed and the number of nodules on the roots of the plants from untreated seed. He often gets his samples from experimental and check plots in the same field. Lately, Mr. Brownson has made a collection of samples that vividly illustrate the effect of inoculation on legume seed. The roots of some of the plants he is preserving in bottles, and the stems in small sheaves.

field of alfalfa and expects to summer fallow the land to clear it of weeds and to improve the soil. He expects to turn the field back into alfalfa. He will soon start cutting 15 acres of timothy. He has five acres of very promising sugar beets. His 20 acres of oats, three and one-half acres of barley, and 15 acres of corn will give him all of the dairy feeds of the kinds that he needs this season. He sowed nine acres of sweet clover last spring to be used as pasture next summer.

Cuts Sweet Clover

John Kavanaugh, cut 10 acres of the best sweet clover raised in his town this season for hay and is now pasturing his cattle on the second stand. The recent rains are pushing the new growth along rapidly. He need not worry about a shortage of pasture.

Gerard Ebben, town of Kaukauna, is raising 23 acres of promising corn, five acres of barley, and 15 acres of Sudan grass. This spring he sowed alfalfa for the first time in his experience in a four-acre field. He will get his early hay from 40 acres of old meadows and his late hay from his Sudan grass field.

George Scheibe, town of Freedom, has more sweet clover pasture than he needs in two fields, the one 10 acres and the other, five acres. He may cut the surplus in one of the fields for hay. The cattle are wading in the best of feed and do not move far to fill up. As his herd consists of 20 cows, the animals have much more than they can do to keep pace with the growth of the pasture. To have an abundance of pasture next season, Mr. Scheibe seeded 20 acres of sweet clover this season. He is haying in a 10 acre mixture of timothy and alfalfa. The approximate acreages of his other crops are: 7 acres of barley, 20 acres of oats, 3 acres of sugar beets and 2 acres of cabbage.

Do you inhale?

Luckies "make no bones" about this vital question

"KEEP that under your hat," said the cigarette trade when first we raised the question—"Do you inhale?"

But silence is golden only when it's unwise to speak. Let others explain their striking avoidance of this subject. Lucky Strike makes its position crystal clear... for certainly, inhaling is most important to every smoker.

For everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not...every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike "makes no bones" about this vital question because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!
